DEFENSE BILL; ADDS FUNDSPares Certain Eisenhower Proposals but Hikes Appropriations

Submarines.WASHINGTON, May 28
(UPI)—The House Appropriations Committee approved most of President Eisenhower's stepped-up military spending program today. It added extra funds for rockets and four more nuclear-powered submarines.The committee recommended a $38,310,561,000 defense appropriation for the fiscal year starting July 1.The total was nearly 4 billion dollars higher than the committee voted for the current fiscal year. The increase would not be reflected directly in actual defense spending, however, as the Defense Department operates to a large extent on funds carried over from previous years. Actual spending this fiscal year will be about $39 billion dollars.Although the committee pared the President's proposals here and there, it boosted the over-all total by $113,614,000.
Largest increase was $638,043-000 to build four more nuclear-powered submarines to fire the Polaris 1500-mile ballistic missile.The committee voted also to add $138,000,000 for work on the Hound Dog, a supersonic missile to be fired from B-52 bombers at ground targets, and on the Minuteman system—an Air Force project to develop a 3000-mile, solid-fuel missile.Money for Reserve.
Also tacked onto the Administration request were $81-918,000 to maintain the Army National Guard and reserve at their present strengths, and $45,200,000 to forestall a 25-000-man cut in the Marine Corps.Decreases of $907,547,000 were ordered by the committee in the President's plan. More than offsetting these were hikes totaling $1,021,161,000.The committee said the sums it recommended were justified solely on military grounds and warned against spending defense money "for spending's sake," to create jobs as an anti-recession move.Congress already has appropriated funds for three nuclear-powered Polaris submarines.
The Administration asked for $306,757,000 in the current budget to start two more.The committee, plugging the Polaris system as a "major deterrent" to war, said this was not enough and added $638,043,000 for more submarines. It put in $11,000,000 more to step up work on submarines for the shorter range Regulus missiles.Spare Parts Cut.
While "haste" is needed to speed up important defense programs, the committee said, this should not be an invitation "to slipshod, irresponsible and wasteful actions."Charging that "millions of tax dollars have been poured down the drain" in recent years through the purchase of too many spare parts for airplanes, the group slashed $343,500,000 from the amounts sought by the armed services for this purpose.It also knocked out $104-000,000 for Navy ships, including $35,000,000 for advance procurement on a second atomic-powered aircraft carrier.Also refused was a request for $23,800,000 by the Navy

SET UP BY C.A.B. TO CUT
AIR COLLISION DANGERWASHINGTON, May 28 (AP).
THE Civil Aeronautics Board today created three transcontinental super skyways in a move to lessen the danger of aircraft collisions. The skyways will be established June 15.As of that date all flights between 17,000 and 22,000 feet altitude in the designated air corridors will be wholly controlled from the ground regardless of weather.
The ground control will apply to both military and commercial planes using the skyways.The corridors will be 40 miles wide. Within them planes will be separated by at least 1000 feet vertically and 10 minutes flying time horizontally.The CAB said the airlines, which already have pledged their pilots will submit voluntarily to ground control in all operations above 10,000 feet, endorsed the skyway plan."The Department of Defense informed the CAB this morning of its endorsement," the board said.NAVY SATELLITE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.,
May 28 (UPI)—A full-scale satellite, launched by the Navy last night with the Vanguard rocket, shot 2000 miles into space but at an off-angle that kept it from going into orbit.It was the second consecutive failure of the Vanguard to blast a fully instrumented 20-inch satellite into orbit. This time, the satellite President Eisenhower talked about in 1955 when he first announced this country's space program for the International Geophysical Year.The Vanguard was fired at 10:44 p.m. It was out of sight in about two minutes. At first it appeared the launching was successful and that the satellite would join in space the 6.4 inch Vanguard test moon put into orbit last March 17, the two Explorers and the big Sputnik III which weighs 1½ tons.Picked Up Signal.
Radio Corporation of America at Riverhead, N. Y., reported it picked up a signal at 11:50 p.m. and received it until 12:08 a.m. today. Downward stations in the South Atlantic also picked up signals shortly after the launching.Then there was silence.
Negative reports from listening points around the world dimmed hopes of orbiting.Navy scientists at Cape Canaveral and Washington admitted behavior of the Vanguard was confusing, but it was not until dawn that they announced the attempt had failed.Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the Vanguard project who came to this launching base to observe the event, said the 72-foot rocket "appeared to function well through the firing of all three stages but still did not result in an orbit."In Washington, Dr. Richard W. Porter, chairman of the IGY satellite program, issued an identical statement. He said another Vanguard would be fired next month.Upward Attitude.
Hagen said radio signals received from the satellite at a Navy mini-track station on An-tis Island in the West Indies indicated that the satellite "had assumed an arc-like upward attitude."This prevailed, Hagen said, as the satellite sped southeast-ward over the Atlantic.According to initial calculations the satellite reached a peak altitude of about 2000 statute miles at its zenith and fell back to earth," Hagen said.He emphasized that while the little artificial moon failed to attain an orbit, the great height achieved by the satellite was expected to produce "much valuable scientific information."The satellite radiated data to earth for 15 to 25 minutes after it was fired "and possibly for

Charge.By BOYD F. CARROLL

—F. V. Ellison of Webster Groves testified today that he did not accompany Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger on a trip to Los Angeles to return a bail jumper to St. Louis county.
He was a witness in the opening of Litzinger's trial on a charge of stealing $261.61 from the state through an allegedly fraudulent expense account.Ellison, vice president of the General Elevator Engineering
Co. of St. Louis and a friend of Sheriff Litzinger, said he did not make a claim to the state for any expenses on the trip and had not requested the sheriff to make such a claim.The state charges that the St. Louis county Sheriff collected the $261.61 as expenses for food and lodging for a guard in going to Los Angeles to serve extradition papers on Floyd O. Julian. A bail jumper, Julian later was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on a robbery charge. Ellison was listed on the expense account as a guard.Ellison said he had planned to make the trip with the Sheriff, but the night before they were to leave he telephoned Litzinger and told him business would prevent him from going.
The prosecution then asked him a series of questions concerning money the sheriff allegedly received from the state for bringing Julian back for trial. He was asked if he knew whether the sheriff billed a professional bondsman in St. Louis for $10 a day for 14 days for a guard in this case. Ellison said he did not know.He also was asked if he knew the sheriff used a county-owned automobile on the trip and collected mileage expenses.
Ellison said he did not.
On cross-examination Ellison was asked if he knew that the Post-Dispatch had a crusade on at the time. Ellison said he did not, but that it didn't worry him. This was an apparent reference to Post-Dispatch disclosures that lead to the charges against the sheriff.Gov. Blair Testifies.
Gov. James T. Blair, state witness, identified the allegedly fraudulent expense account and recalled that Ellison's name was on it as a guard.Hale W. Brown, attorney for Litzinger, questioned the Governor in cross examination, developing that Litzinger had not been compensated by the state, although he traveled 5000 miles, sometimes "over icy roads," and at a rate of 5 cents a mile he was entitled to $250."This isn't a claim for mileage," Gov. Blair said. "It was a claim for meals and lodging for a guard who didn't go along. He made a claim for a guard. He's a grown man and should know what he's doing."Brown asked if a man could go to Los Angeles and back for $261.61. James T. Blair, state prosecutor, objected that the only question before the court was the charge that Litzinger collected money from the state for a guard who did not make the trip.Circuit Judge Sam Blair, brother of the Governor, who is presiding, sustained the objection.Then, Brown asked the Governor if he would appoint a thief as an agent. Riley objected, but before the court could stop the Governor he said: "The people of St. Louis county made Litzinger sheriff."The Governor was asked by Brown if he had a personal interest in Litzinger's conviction."I have no feeling one way or the other," Blair said. "This is a lawsuit. If he is guilty of stealing from the state, he should be found guilty. If he is not, he should be acquitted."Brown then asked if the Governor had any political reasons for wanting to see Litzinger convicted."I have no desire to see any man convicted and sent to jail for political reasons," Gov.
Blair answered."You know Sheriff Litzinger

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.(Copyright, 1958, Pulitzer Publishing Co.) PARIS, May 28 — At his secret night meeting with Premier Pflimlin, Gen. Charles de Gaulle delivered what was virtually an ultimatum to the effect that he would not accept the premiership without the support of all the major parties, with the exception of the Communists, the Post-Dispatch learned today.The General told Pflimlin, it was learned from reliable sources, that without such support he would return to his retreat at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises and stay there. It was this declaration from the General, together with the 112-to-3 vote of the Socialists in a party caucus late yesterday against accepting De Gaulle, that made the situation today
so difficult.While President Rene Coty had warned the parliamentary leaders last week that he would call De Gaulle if the Pflimlin government fell, he was balked by the certainty that the National Assembly would not give the General a majority. Therefore, with Pflimlin announcing in the early morning hours of an all-night session that he would remain in office only until a new government could be found. Coty consulted again with the men who have failed in the past to muster authority to solve France's problems.What made the situation all the more critical was the further warning given by De Gaulle in his talk Monday night with Pflimlin. He told the Premier that only 36 to 48 hours remained before some irresponsible action from the military junta in Algiers could be expected.Gen. Raoul Salan, the commander in Algiers, is said to have informed both Coty and Pflimlin yesterday that he could not hope to restrain very much longer the colonels who are the real force behind the May 13 takeover in Algiers.The House of Commons in London, in a telegram from Robert Lacoste, former governor of Algeria, to De Gaulle, Lacoste said that Salan had been outmaneuvered by "adventurers and certain headed officers" responsible for the seizure of Corsica from the legal authorities.This was clearly a reference to the military clique said to be dictating Salan's moves in Algeria. One of their number, Col. Jean Thomas, was sent from Algiers yesterday to Corsica to be governor of that island in the hands of the insurrectionists.The next move obviously would be to take over some point in the south of France, possibly Marseille. It is this that responsible officials here, including American observers keeping a virtual round the clock watch, dread since the start of the civil war about which Pflimlin and other government leaders have repeatedly warned. Marseille, for example, is a center of Communist and leftwing Socialist forces who would not take an attack without active resistance.To those of use who sat

SENATE REJECTS
THIRD REVISION OF JOBLESS AIDTurns Down Proposal to Require All States to Pay for Additional 16 Weeks.WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—
The Senate rejected a move to revise an emergency jobless pay bill today so as to require all states to provide benefits for an additional 16 weeks.The proposal amendment, offered by Senator John F. Kenedy (Dem., Massachusetts), was defeated 57 to 27 on a roll call.This was the third setback suffered by Senators who say they want to strengthen the House-passed bill to authorize federal advances to the states for a temporary extension of unemployment benefits. The Eisenhower Administration has indorsed the measure.Other proposed changes in the bill still remained to be considered before a final vote.Details of Proposal.
Kennedy's amendment would have permitted unemployed workers who have exhausted their benefit rights to draw compensation at the prevailing state rate for an additional 16 weeks.It would have applied to the unemployed in all states. The House-passed bill authorizes each state, if it wishes, to extend by as much as 50 per cent the number of weeks in which insured workers could draw jobless benefits. More than half the states now pay benefits for 26 weeks.Kennedy's amendment also would have excused the states from repaying to the Federal Government the cost of the extended benefits if, by 1963, they raised their benefit standards or if their unemployment reserve funds were in precarious condition.Next the Senate defeated 47 to 36 a Kennedy amendment which simply would have provided an extra 16 weeks of payments to the jobless persons and made it mandatory on all states.Senators seeking to strengthen the bill contend it is virtually useless, but on the first test vote yesterday they were

Many Friendly Contacts With General.By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.WASHINGTON, May 28 — President Eisenhower said today he happened to be one of those persons who liked Gen.
Charles de Gaulle. But he declined at his press conference to comment on the French crisis.A reporter, recalling that Mr.
Eisenhower had dealt with De Gaulle when the latter headed the Free French forces in the last war, asked whether the President would give his personal opinion of the French leader without reference to the situation in his country.Mr. Eisenhower replied that De Gaulle was part of the crisis he had announced he would not discuss. But he went on to say, however, that he had enjoyed many friendly contacts with De Gaulle and liked him. The President said that one of the last things he did before retiring as Supreme Allied commander in Europe was to attend a dinner with De Gaulle. The pair had a long talk about the world and the future, Mr. Eisenhower recalled.Wrote of His Stubbornness.
In his book "Crusade in Europe," Gen. Eisenhower said of the man who may soon take power in France:"I personally liked Gen. De Gaulle, as I recognized in him many fine qualities. We felt, however, that these qualities were marred by hyper-sensitiveness and an extraordinary stubbornness in matters which appeared inconsequential to us.
My own wartime contacts with him never developed the heat that seemed to be generated frequently in his meetings with many others."Referring to the upheavals in many parts of the world, a reporter asked the President why the United States, although one of the most powerful nations in the world, seems to be powerless to fend off foreign crises. He wanted to know whether there was something lacking in United States policy.Mr. Eisenhower said the trouble lies not in the policy but in the execution. He observed it was not possible to isolate problems and deal

Gen. Charles de Gaulle to Paris today—possibly to take over leadership of France.Informed sources said Coty had won agreement from the Catholic Popular Republicans and Independents (conservatives) for De Gaulle to become premier. Together, the two parties control 175 votes in the 595-member National Assembly.The General headed at once of destiny arrived just as an estimated 100,000 leftists and moderates marched across Paris protesting against his rise to ward power.Police took elaborate precautions at Colombey to keep newsmen from trailing De Gaulle. Roads were blocked for 15 minutes. For the first time, an escort car from France's Surete Generale accompanied the General.At that moment tens of thousands of anti-De Gaulle demonstrators surged into the Place de la Bastille where the French Revolution of 1789 erupted. Former Premier

the Radical Socialist (moderate)

NEW FIGHTING BREAKS OUT IN TRIPOLI, OTHER LEBANESE CITIES

2 Members of Forces Opposing Chamoun Killed, 12 Wounded in Effort to Break Out of Blockade.

BEIRUT, May 28 (AP)—Intense fighting flared again yesterday in Tripoli, the Mediterranean seaport where Lebanon's crisis began 10 days ago. Eyewitness reports said two members of the forces opposing pro-Western President Camille Chamoun were killed and 12 wounded. The opposition fighters reportedly tried to break out of the old Muslim quarter where they have been blockaded and the government's security forces forced them back.

Skirmishes were reported also in Halba, in northeast Lebanon. In central Lebanon security forces encircled Baalbek, held by rebellious Druse tribesmen.

(United Press International reported three United States C-124 Globemasters and a C-119 Flying Boxcar with more than 50 tons of spare tank engines, transmissions and extra parts. It quoted a United States embassy official as saying the shipment was "a normal annual spare parts delivery" and not part of the consignment of 18 tanks due soon under a speeded-up military aid agreement.)

Offer Rejected. Opposition leaders rejected last night the government offer to solve the bitter crisis by pledging that Chamoun would not try to amend the constitution so he could serve a second six-year term. The President's known ambition to continue in office, which under the present constitution he must quit Sept. 22, has been a major issue in recent violence in which more than 200 have been killed.

The government offer was made by Premier Sami Solh in a radio broadcast urging strikers to return to work.

The chief opposition leader, former Premier Saeb Salam, said his forces had lots of confidence in both Solh and Chamoun and again demanded the President's immediate resignation. A more moderate opposition leader, Henry Pharaon, termed the Premier's statement a step in the right direction but indicated he thought Solh at least should resign.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, the Security Council put off debate on Lebanon's charges that the rebellion had been fostered by President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic. The council agreed unanimously to take up the Lebanese complaint, then postponed discussion of it until after the Arab League Council considers the Lebanese charges at a meeting over the weekend.

Meeting Shifted. This meeting was scheduled originally for Tripoli, one of Libya's two capitals. An Arab League spokesman in Cairo said it will be held in the other—Benghazi.

Soviet Ambassador Arkady A. Sobolev, who said Russia did not consider Lebanon justified in bringing the complaint to the council, suggested that debate be deferred.

Lebanese delegate Karim Azkoul said his government hoped the issue could be settled in the Arab League and that it would not be necessary to come back to the council with it. He asked that the council stand ready to meet immediately "if sudden events take place in the meantime in our country because of foreign intervention."

New York Times News Service. Lebanese rebels are getting increased aid, including even medium artillery, from Syria, Egypt's partner in the U.A.R. A reliable source said last night interference by the U.A.R. was said to be increasing. It was learned that a mule caravan intercepted Monday was carrying howitzer ammunition.

Reports from an official source said air reconnaissance showed at least 500 men reached Kamal Jumblatt from Syria Monday. This raised its estimated total strength to about 1200.

Jumblatt is the Druse leader opposing Chamoun in the area southeast of Beirut.

The reinforcements from Syria are not believed to be composed of Syrians but of Lebanese who were armed in Syria and returned to fight. They were reliably reported to have received at least 20 howitzers probably of four-inch caliber. Those are strictly military weapons and not something that is easily smuggled.

7 ST. CHARLES YOUTHS SEIZED IN 11 BURGLARIES

Eleven burglaries in St. Charles in the last year were reported cleared up yesterday by St. Charles police with the arrest of seven boys, three of them under 17 years of age. The others, charged in warrants, are 17. They are Lester Moore Jr., Richard Sims, Wendell Milligan and Carl Pennington. The places where burglaries were committed included filling stations, a supermarket, a lumber yard and a theater.

Moore killed his father with a shotgun blast Dec. 30, 1956. After a circuit court hearing, the shooting was called justifiable homicide.

President Thinks Recession Has Largely Spent Itself

Asserts Country Is Weathering Slump Well—Declines to Say When There Will Be an Upturn.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 28—President Eisenhower, defending his recommendation for no tax cut this session of Congress, said today he believed the economic recession had largely spent itself. He declined to predict when there would be an upturn in business and employment.

The Chief Executive told his press conference the United States was weathering the recession well and that the current economic situation did not warrant any tax reductions that would create further deficit spending.

He made an exception, as in the past, for tax relief for small business, a recommendation he made last year and repeated in his January budget message. He hoped this measure could be taken up after Congress had passed a simple resolution retaining the present tax rates on corporate income (52 per cent) and current excise taxes due to expire June 30. He has an agreement with Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson to oppose any other tax reduction legislation.

Day's First Question. The President's face flushed a little when the first question at the conference was: "Will you please tell us what led you to decide against an anti-recession tax cut?"

He told the reporter it looked like a "loaded question." He added that he was not sure any tax cut could be pictured as an anti-recession move. He said the decision had been based on the best advice he could get from experts in and out of government, that the tax situation had been a matter of intense daily study and that the conclusion was that of now the economic situation did not warrant any tax reduction other than for small business.

He was happier when asked how he was able to get the agreement of Democrats Rayburn and Johnson. He observed with a grin that he had been born in Texas—in fact, in the district Rayburn represents in Congress. Another factor in the agreement is that Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson, also a Texan, enjoys the high regard of the two Democratic leaders.

The President implied but did not specifically say that the tax decision was part of the Administration's policy to try to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar. At the same time he deplored any idea of the Government's trying to control wages and prices in time of peace, other than by fiscal methods.

On White House Parley. In keeping with this non-interference in management-labor affairs, he threw cold water on the suggestion he invite United States Steel Corporation Chairman Roger Blough and Steel Workers President David McDonald to the White House to try to get them to agree to oppose forthcoming increases in steel prices and steel wages.

The inquiring reporter said such a White House conference would give "a cloak of national interest, of national statesmanship," to the problem of keeping prices and wages at their present level.

Mr. Eisenhower said he had never conferred with the two men simultaneously but that each knew his position. As he recalled it, the Steel Workers would, under their contract, get an automatic wage increase in July. He said he saw no value in such a meeting except in the case of an emergency.

The reporter interjected that such a meeting might be productive because of the report that McDonald was "shaky within his union."

Although the President called on management and labor to co-operate to keep prices from spiraling dangerously, he hinted he thought most of the price increases came from rising wages.

Pointing to the public address microphone on his desk, he said economic analysts had told him that 80 per cent of the cost of such things was for labor.

"When these people"—presumably the workers—"get increases," he said, "the price is bound to go up."

He did not see anything the Government could do except by fiscal management. The Government, he continued, wants a sound dollar so that pensions and insurance policies will retain their value.

"We're going to be in, very serious trouble," he said, "unless we keep the dollar stable."

Query on Contradiction. A reporter asked him if there was not a contradiction in his appeal to management and labor and the Government's granting of wage increases to postal workers, military personnel and classified civil servants.

Mr. Eisenhower reluctantly agreed there was "a partial contradiction." He pointed out that he had repeatedly recommended governmental wage increases to correct the "inequities" of the system.

He said Congress, in granting a 10 per cent wage increase to postal workers, had gone beyond his original recommendation of 6 per cent as an offset for a rise in the cost of living. He added that he was willing to go up to 7½ per cent, to take care of the living increase since his original recommendation, but that Congress went to 10 per cent, with no increase for the supervisory personnel.

"I didn't like that," he remarked, "but the good points of the bill outweighed the bad." He obviously was referring to the postal rate increases which will bring in more money than the wage increases will cost.

WEST RESUMES TALKS IN MOSCOW ON SUMMIT TERMS

MOSCOW, May 28 (AP)—Diplomatic maneuvering toward an East-West summit conference resumed in Moscow today after a three-week lull.

British ambassador Sir Patrick Reilly called on Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. An embassy spokesman said Reilly had discussed "questions relating to the convening of a summit conference."

The United States and French ambassadors are expected to call on Gromyko shortly, possibly tomorrow. The three Western ambassadors were reported in touch after Reilly returned from the Foreign Ministry.

Neither the Soviet Foreign Ministry nor the three Western embassies would give any details. For two months the diplomatic phase of negotiations has been limited to sparring over how the diplomatic talks should be conducted.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO MAKE ALASKA A STATE

Two Attempts to Send Measure to Committee Fail—Proposal Goes to Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UPI)—The House passed a bill today to admit Alaska to the Union as the forty-ninth state. It approved the measure after defeating two attempts to send it back to committee.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where it was expected to have a good chance of passage.

The House roll call was 208 to 166. Two members voted "present." With five vacancies, the House now has 430 members.

Voting for the bill were 117 Democrats and 91 Republicans. Against it were 81 Democrats and 85 Republicans.

The House acted over the opposition of Republican leaders and Southern Democrats. Top Republican members had voted previously to recommit the measure to the House Interior Committee despite President Eisenhower's personal pleas on behalf of the bill.

Representatives Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, Leslie C. Wheeler of Illinois, G.O.P. whip, and Charles Halleck of Indiana, former Republican floor leader, all voted against final passage.

Yesterday, the coalition of G.O.P. leaders and Southern Democrats succeeded in getting the House to kill tentatively the measure by striking out its enabling clause. Today this action was reversed.

Opponents then concentrated on trying to send it back to committee.

Just before the bill won approval, the House on a roll call defeated the final effort to recommit it to committee—a move that almost certainly would have meant the bill's death at this session of Congress.

Earlier it rejected 199 to 174 another recommittal motion offered by Representative Walter Rogers (Dem., Texas).

Before final passage, the House approved 91 to 8 an amendment to reduce from 182,000 acres to 102,550,000 the amount of unreserved public lands in Alaska the Federal Government would turn over to the new state.

Junta Assures U.S. It Won't Intervene in Morocco or Tunisia

Algerian Committee Appears More Concerned With Paris Power Struggle Than Arguments With Neighbors.

ALGERIA, May 28 (UPI)—The United States has received an assurance from Algeria's rebel generals that they will not embark on military adventures in neighboring Tunisia and Morocco, it was learned today.

The assurance was given as the generals and civilian members of Algeria's Public Safety Committee awaited word from Paris on Gen. Charles de Gaulle's efforts to form a government.

Informal sources said the assurance was given to United States Consul-General Frederick Lyon by Army Commander Gen. Raoul Salan.

It had been feared that recent clashes at Remada in southern Tunisia between French and Tunisian troops, which provoked Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba to declare a state of emergency and order an urgent complaint with the Security Council, might lead to intervention by French forces in Algeria.

The Public Safety Committee pledged "no retreat" in its campaign to bring De Gaulle to power. It held an emergency meeting to consider the heavy vote polled by the anti-De Gaulle forces in the National Assembly in Paris last night.

Morocco Tense. The situation in Morocco also was tense with Moroccan authorities refusing to allow French reinforcements to land in that country.

The sources said, however, that Salan, who invited the United States consul to call on him, made clear that his regime had no aggressive intention toward its neighbors.

For the time being, it appeared that the General and the French settlers were too concerned with the struggle for power in France to consider settling accounts with the Tunisian and Moroccan regimes.

For months past, the Algerian regime has accused the Tunisian government of allowing the country to be turned into a base for the Algerian rebels.

Careful of Balance. Last night, former Algerian Governor-General Jacques Soustelle, addressing a crowd of 100,000 in front of Government House greeted the news that De Gaulle was trying to form a government with the words: "In order and discipline we reply—present, my general."

There was an obvious reluctance on the part of both the generals and the civilian committee members to say anything to upset the delicate balance in Paris. They felt that a wrong word at this stage might bring the Communists and Socialists into the streets and throw the country into civil war.

In Tunisia, meanwhile, 100,000 Tunisians screaming anti-French slogans milled through the streets last night, echoing government demands for the withdrawal of France's 22,000-man garrison from Tunisia.

The demonstration began with a mass meeting in independence square when President Bourguiba told a huge crowd his regime "no longer wants co-operation with the French army or with France."

The crowd shouted its defiance of the Gaullist French rebels who now control Algeria. Soustelle and paratroop Brig. Gen. Jacques Massu were particular targets of the crowd's wrath.

It was not immediately certain whether the pending changes in the French government would change Bourguiba's attitude. He once said Gen. De Gaulle is the only Frenchman who could straighten out the North African situation, but last night he included him among the targets of his speech.

Supplies to Corsica. French officials were flying a plane load of urgently needed medical supplies today to Corsica, which has been isolated from the mainland since insurgent civilians and paratroopers seized control there Saturday.

The plane was expected to return from the Corsican capital of Ajaccio with persons needing hospital attention. Normal ship and air traffic to the island has been severed.

New York Times News Service. One of Gen. Salan's officials reported that the La Fayette, former United States aircraft carrier that put into Bone Monday to "take on fuel," had left or would soon leave for an undisclosed destination.

He affirmed that the arrival of the La Fayette and four anti-aircraft destroyers in Algerian ports was coincidental and had "nothing at all to do" with the army-led revolt against the Pflimlin government.

RUSSIA HOLDS UP ON ECONOMIC CREDIT FOR TITO

Yugoslavia Had Been Promised $25,000,000 for Industrial Projects.

BELGRADE, May 28 (AP)—The Soviet Union put the economic squeeze on Yugoslavia today by postponing for five years a credit arrangement between the two countries.

The decision was announced by the official news agency Tanjug. It came as no surprise, since Yugoslav-Soviet relations have been deteriorating in recent weeks.

The Soviet Union in two agreements had promised economic credits to Yugoslavia amounting to $25,000,000. This was to be used for building an aluminum plant in Montenegro and other industrial projects. Only a small part of the credit was for cash loans and consumer goods.

It was the latest Soviet move in the feuding between the Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia since the recent Yugoslav party congress, which declared Yugoslavia's independence from either the western or eastern blocs. The Soviet Union and others in the eastern bloc refused to send party delegations to the congress.

Recently, the Soviet Union canceled economic talks with Yugoslavia and failed to send experts for the building of a fertilizer plant.

The tension between Yugoslavia and the Soviet bloc now which is approaching the level of 1948, when Yugoslavia was kicked out of the cominform and suffered hard economic pressure from the East.

The new cancellation will hit the Yugoslav economy hard and upset efforts of Yugoslavia to balance its foreign trade.

Foreign observers here expect regular trade relations between Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union will be affected also by the Soviet squeeze.

TELEVISION FIRM OFFICIAL SAYS HE SPOKE TO HODGE ABOUT CHANNEL 2

Springfield (Ill.) Man Testifies He Sought to 'Neutralize' Political Pressure on Other Side.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28—An officer of a Springfield, Ill., television company admitted before a House subcommittee today that he spoke to Orville Hodge, former Illinois state auditor, about his hopes for an award of a television channel to his company.

However, the witness, Richard Cohen, vice president of WMAZ-TV, denied that he had asked Hodge to solicit members of Congress for help on behalf of his company.

"I asked Mr. Hodge only for advice," Cohen said. Robert Lishman, subcommittee counsel, then read from a statement taken from Hodge in prison where he is serving a sentence for looting the state treasury of $1,500,000. In the statement Hodge said Cohen asked him in 1955 or 1956 to "contact the local members of Congress and the United States Senator." Hodge said his reply was that he would be happy to do so as a favor to Cohen.

Cohen told the subcommittee that he had approached Hodge as a friend rather than a politician.

"Wanted Fair Hearing."

"I don't know anything about politics—we only wanted a fair hearing," Cohen explained.

Representative John E. Moss (Dem., California), suggested Cohen had been seeking "some off-setting political pressure."

"I prefer to use the word 'neutralize,'" Cohen replied. "Certainly we felt and hoped that he would look into the matter and see who was working for the other side and in turn, perhaps, that could be neutralized."

Cohen testified he appealed to Hodge after an FCC examiner ruled against WMAZ-TV for Channel 2 at Springfield and tentatively awarded it to the Sangamon Valley Television Co. However, the commission rejected the examiner's recommendation and gave the channel to WMAZ-TV.

Subsequently, in a "deterrence" ruling, Channel 2 was awarded to KTVI in St. Louis and WMAZ-TV was given ultra high frequency Channel 36.

Sherman Adams Letters.

The subcommittee is looking into awards of television channels by the FCC. In pursuit of this objective, it is running into difficulties in obtaining letters written to the FCC by presidential assistants Sherman Adams and other White House officials, the Post-Dispatch was told.

A fight is shaping up between the FCC and the subcommittee over the White House correspondence, which figures in allegations that Adams and others in the Administration interfered with decisions by federal regulatory agencies.

Members of the subcommittee said the FCC thus far has been unable or unwilling to produce letters from Adams dealing with several contested television cases, although requested to do so "some time ago."

One of the cases is that of Channel 4 in St. Louis, which was awarded to KWK-TV. The House group has obtained two letters to Adams from Rosel H. Hyde, a member and former acting chairman of the FCC, concerning this decision.

No Record on Adams.

Staff members told the Post-Dispatch the wording of Hyde's letters indicates that Adams got in touch with the commission about the Channel 4 case, but neither Hyde nor other FCC officials have been able to produce any record of Adams' interest.

Warren E. Baker, general counsel of the FCC, denied that the commission has withheld any records. He said the subcommittee had not made all its requests specific enough to enable the FCC to find the material being sought.

Meanwhile, it was learned that George C. McConaughy, former FCC chairman, has dissolved a law arrangement with George O. Sutton, who represented an applicant in a Pittsburgh television case that was pending before the commission when McConaughy was chairman.

The decision, which involved the award of Channel 4 in Indian Educator Says Organization Is Close to Common Man—Has No Fear for Food Supply.

By WILLIAM K. WYANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 28—The World Health Organization opened its eleventh general assembly here today to discuss, in an atmosphere free of political acrimony, its mission of clearing up disease and improving public health in all nations of the globe.

Sir Arcut Lakshmanswami Mudaliar, vice chancellor of Madras University of India, said dramatic decreases in Asian death rates and in incidence of contagious diseases during the last 10 years.

In Ceylon since 1946, he said, life expectancy had jumped from 44 years to 60 years.

"No agency has had more contact with the common man," Sir Arcut said, "than has the World Health Organization."

He emphasized the co-operation of WHO with such other United Nations agencies as UNICEF—the U.N.'s International Children's Emergency Fund.

Not Worried Over Food.

Sir Arcut, summing up testimony of progress at WHO's tenth anniversary commemorative session which ended this morning, scoffed at fears that the world's food supply would not keep up with increases in population.

"I think," he said, "man's integrity has not come to an end."

An impressive figure in yellow turban, and speaking in precise English, Sir Arcut deplored the fact that some major nations, such as Red China, are not members of the WHO. He said the organization should be truly global, regardless of political differences.

"The peasant of Thailand freed from malaria, the laborer in Indonesia to whom yaws no longer is a dread disease, the mother in Ceylon who no longer dreads the natural process of delivery—these are persons who now know there is somebody in the world who cares for them."

The parade of speakers from Asia, Europe, Africa, the Americas and the Mediterranean shores brought white, black and brown speakers to the rostrum. They spoke the common language of public health, although in different tongues, and the ceremony was a demonstration of the international character of the attack on disease.

Milton Eisenhower, brother of President Eisenhower and president of Johns Hopkins University, yesterday conveyed to the organization an offer by the President to donate $300,000 toward international research on cancer, heart disease and other major illnesses.

The American research offer was put forward both by Milton Eisenhower and Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who addressed an earlier luncheon, as an implementation of President Eisenhower's message last January. That message called for a "full-scale, co-operative program of science for peace."

Reports by Nations.

In the program Monday night and most of yesterday, Dr. Sabih Al-Wahbi of Iraq, president of the Assembly, called on representatives of various nations to report progress made under WHO auspices in the last 10 years. The testimonials were impressive.

Dr. Karl Evang, director general of health services for Norway, said immense strides were being made in the fight against disease, but he deplored the fact that some of the more powerful nations tend to bypass the world health agency, spending much more outside WHO than they do to support its work.

In view of the increasing tension in the world," he said, "it is now urgent that we, the doctors, at least gather all the nations of the world into an organization which has a unique opportunity to release some of that tension."

first letter, dated Oct. 27, 1953, noted that there were three applicants, radio stations KWK and KXOK and the Missouri Valley Television Co.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat held a stock interest in KWK, a fact which Hyde noted. KXOK was owned by Elzey Roberts of St. Louis and his family. Missouri Valley was owned by Stanley E. Hubbard of St. Paul, Minn., and 36 other stockholders.

In his second letter, dated April 23, 1954, Hyde informed Adams that the FCC decision awarding Channel 4 in St. Louis to KWK was being announced that day. This letter also drew attention to the Globe-Democrat's stock interest.

Stephen J. Angland, a subcommittee attorney, has searched through FCC files looking for a request by Adams in the Channel 4 matter and several other contested TV cases but has failed to find anything, it was learned.

ESTIMATE BOARD OK'S EXPANSION OF FOOD GIFTS

Distribution Authorized for Persons on State Relief—24,000 Persons Added.

Expansion of the city's program for the distribution of surplus foods to include persons on state relief was authorized yesterday by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The distribution previously had been confined to able-bodied persons who were unemployed.

About 24,000 additional persons will be involved, including those receiving blind pensions, the disabled and recipients of old age relief and aid to dependent children.

Comptroller John H. Poelker told the board that he had conferred with State Welfare Director Proctor Carter who informed him that no State funds were available to defray the State's share of the cost of this distribution.

$60,000 Expenditure.

As the result, Poelker requested the estimate board to authorize the expenditure of $60,000 of municipal funds to carry on the program for the remainder of the current fiscal year. The State will be asked to assume the responsibility for this cost when the Legislature convenes next January to make appropriations for the new fiscal period.

Arrangements were made with Carter to have the State mail certification cards to the relief recipients in the same envelopes with their monthly checks, Poelker said.

The estimate board took under study a proposal by the St. Louis Industrial Park Corporation, sponsored by the Metropolitan St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, to obtain an option on the Columbia Bottoms area, acquired years ago by the city as the site for a second major airport. That project, however, was abandoned.

If an option to the 4400-acre site can be obtained, the corporation hopes to raise funds for improving it for the installation of major industries. Chamber President Aloys P. Kaufmann told the board.

Improvements Needed.

About $7,500,000 in improvements, consisting of $3,500,000 for flood protection work and other improvements which include extension of rail, highway, water and sewer facilities into the area, must be made before it can be used for industrial purposes, Kaufmann said.

He estimated that after these preliminary improvements are made about 1000 acres could be made available as sites for heavy industries and about 2000 acres for light manufacturing plants. Other acreage will be used for service roads, railroad tracks and a parklike buffer area between the industrial site and Columbia Bottoms road.

If an option to purchase the land from the city can be obtained, the chamber is prepared to raise $500,000 immediately to promote the site for an industrial park, he said.

Because the shortage of large industrial sites in this area, making the land available for this purpose would bring in industries which would employ about 90,000 more persons in the area, Kaufmann calculated.

The board heard reports from two independent appraisers employed to fix the value of the site. One fixed it at $1,200,000 and the other at $1,230,000.

Passage Likely

The $4,078,750 in new revenue measures which will be up for a final vote tomorrow in the Board of Aldermen appeared today to have a good chance of enactment despite some concentrated opposition to at least two of the bills.

These bills were reported out yesterday with recommendations for passage by the aldermanic ways and means committee. The action followed defeat Monday in the board of proposals to increase the general property tax rate by 11 cents.

Many aldermen are receiving protests from filling station operators against the proposed one-half-cent increase in the present one-and-one-half-cent gasoline tax. Parking lot operators also are concentrating their fire on a proposal to levy a new 5 per cent gross receipts tax on the parking industry.

Loss to County Charged.

The gasoline tax increase, expected to yield about $685,000, would add to losses suffered by gasoline dealers last year when the tax was upped by one-half cent a gallon, the ways and means committee was told last week.

George W. Streuber, president of the Midwest Gasoline Dealers Association, reported that gallonage figures for the last quarter of 1957, when the one-half cent increase of last year was fully effective, were down 3.76 per cent below the level of the final quarter of 1956.

At the same time, he said, the same comparison in St. Louis county showed an increase of 5.35 per cent in gasoline sales.

"It is apparent that St. Louis' loss has been the county's gain," he told the committee. Streuber said this drop in gallonage meant layoffs of 104 service station helpers whose annual payroll amounted to $432,640. He also declared that a service station operator who sells an average of 15,000 gallons a month is paying $2700 annually in occupational taxes.

William C. Brady indicated that the proposed half-cent increase would bring this to $3600 a year, he said.

In reporting out the bill, the estimate board trimmed the proposed increase from a full cent to one-half cent.

No Action on Rubbish.

The ways and means committee has not yet acted on a controversial measure to levy an annual charge of $8 per dwelling unit for rubbish collection. Committee Chairman William C. Brady indicated consideration of this measure was being deferred to await the fate of the bills already reported out.

Majority Floor Leader James W. Noonan has asked for a full attendance of the board at tomorrow's session because of the importance of the bills to be considered.

Many of the proposals up tomorrow received only token opposition before the Ways and Means Committee. Few objections were made to the proposed revision of the earnings tax regulations by imposing the tax ahead of deductions for state and federal income taxes and there was little op-

Quesada Blames Planning Lag, Lack of Funds for Air Dangers

Says Aviation, on Threshold of Jet Age, Seeks to Solve Yesterday's Problems Today.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG, National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28—Aviation, on the threshold of the jet age, is faced with "the problem of solving yesterday's problems today," Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada (Ret.), chairman of the Airways Modernization Board and special aviation assistant to President Eisenhower, said yesterday.

Declaring that recent collisions were "tragedies that horrified all branches of aviation," he asked in a talk before the Washington Aero Club: "Why do we find ourselves in the position we are in today?"

"Always, we must forecast the problems of the future and start doing something about them now in order to meet them efficiently," he said.

Although jet planes made their appearance more than 10 years ago, "German jets were in the air in the latter days of World War II and the problems attendant to their characteristics, including high speed, could be easily foreseen, planning lagged."

CAA Appropriations.

In 1955, the speaker pointed out, the total appropriation for the Civil Aeronautics Administration was $3,200,000. In 1956 it was $16,000,000; 1957, $73,000,000; 1958, $146,000,000. Assuming that the amount budgeted for fiscal 1959 is approved, Quesada said, the requested $175,000,000 would bring the total for five years to $415,000,000. Of this amount, he observed, 75 per cent, $321,000,000, would have been made available within the last year.

Referring again to the recent air tragedies, he said: "We can't solve problems by impulsive actions; we must foresee them and start planning before they become critical."

Emphasizing the lag between invention, adaptation, production and installation, Quesada pointed out that the failure to appropriate money in past years for research and development was bearing bitter fruit today.

Lag in Radar.

Last April 30, he explained, the Civil Aeronautics Administration had appropriations for 40 long-range radar installations but there are but four in operation.

Long range radar is highly important in developing an air traffic control system capable of dealing with the high speed and high fuel consumption characteristics of the approaching jet age.

"You don't go to Wool-position to a 1-cent increase in the cigarette tax. The committee still has 23 proposed bills to consider."

If all the committee-approved measures are enacted tomorrow, the amount of new revenue produced would still be about $2,000,000 short of balancing the proposed $64,134,000 budget for this year.

In addition, the Estimate Board has pointed out the expansion of the surplus food distribution program to cover persons on direct state relief will add another $60,000 to the costs of the program this fiscal year. Still unresolved is the question whether a slash of $640,000 made by the Estimate Board in the request of the state-controlled police department will stand.

Praise for Military.

Quesada also had a good word for the Civil Aeronautics Board and the military. Referring to his own military background the retired an Air Force lieutenant general at the age of 47, he declared that his experience and associations had not blurred his objectivity in considering the place of the military in the air traffic control problem.

"The military is doing everything it can," he said. "It should not be assumed that collisions which happened to be between a military plane and another were the fault of the military," he said with some feeling. "This is not fair under the American concept of fair play. It takes two to create a collision."

"The military, he went on, "has imposed upon itself restrictions and restraints beyond the letter of the law."

Contributions to techniques both by the military and by the Civil Aeronautics Administration have played an important part in planning, Quesada said.

"We can't adopt half-techniques or old techniques," he added, "or, as has been said by Seversky, 'we can't use the airplane to carry hay to feed the pony express.'"

But Quesada was hopeful of the future — the reasonably near future.

"Within the next year, the equipment the Civil Aeronautics Administration has budgeted will bring great improvements in safety. The solution is in sight without yielding safety or a full consideration of the public interest."

"Admittedly, although it may not appear to be true of the present, the future is bright."

SUMMER PROGRAM FOR COUNTY PARKS

Recreation Courses for Children of 7 to 15 Years Old Announced.

Plans for the summer recreation program at St. Louis county parks for children between the ages of 7 and 15 were announced today by Charles R. Skow, superintendent of the county parks and recreation department.

The program, from June 16 to Aug. 22, will include organized games, arts and crafts and nature hikes at six county parks. They are Tilles Park, Brentwood; Buder Park, near Valley Park; Grandview Farm Park, Affton; Creve Coeur Park and Silvan Springs Park and Matthews Field, Jefferson Barracks.

Registration for the program will be held at each of the parks June 16 at 9:30 a.m. The recreation activities will be conducted Mondays through Fridays, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition, swimming classes will be held at private pools near the parks in co-operation with the Red Cross. Buses will take the children from the parks to the pools and return. A fee will be charged for this course.

A six-week tennis class will be conducted at Tilles Park, beginning next Monday, when registration for the course will be held at the park at 6:30 p.m. The tennis classes will be conducted Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

DON'T SELL FAST, MILL CREEK LAND OWNERS WARNED

Mill Creek Valley area residents were urged by aldermen last night not to be stampeded into selling their property to land speculators. About 400 persons attended the meeting in St. Malachy schoolyard, 2914 Clark avenue.

Alderman Clinton T. Watson (Dem.), Sixteenth ward, chairman of the aldermanic land clearance committee, and other committee members, assured owners they would get a fair price for their property from the Land Clearance Authority when it is purchased for redevelopment of the area. Owners were urged to wait until the authority completes its appraisal before selling out.

The authority under law must find satisfactory new quarters for residents before acquiring their homes, the speakers said. There have been rumors by some speculators that dispossessed owners would be turned out into the streets. It will be several months before anyone is asked to vacate, the speakers said.

Other aldermen at the meeting included Joseph B. McDonald, Twenty-fifth ward; A. Barney Mueller, Twenty-first; T. H. Mayberry, Fourth; Archie Blaine, Sixth. All but McDonald are Democrats.

and Air Force to buy what the committee called "executive-type" aircraft. Most of the funds were sought by the Air Force for 10 jet planes to transport high government officials and documents.

Rejects Transfer.

The committee rejected the President's request for authority to transfer up to two billion dollars in funds from one appropriation to another. This was a key point of Mr. Eisenhower's budget message last January.

A major argument for the transfer power was that it would permit more flexibility in handling military money. The committee said it believes there is "ample flexibility for the achievement of efficiency and economy" without it.

The committee's bill contained $17,317,775,000 for the Air Force, $11,042,210,000 for the Navy, and $8,817,626,000 for the Army. It also provides $796,900,000 for certain inter-service activities, and $336,050,000 for the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

The $38,310,561,000 total was $3,810,711,000 more than appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Flight Pay Restriction.

The committee called for an end to the military practice of letting deskbound officers fly a few hours a month so they can get higher pay.

The committee said flight pay—worth $50 to $165 a month in a serviceman's pay envelope depending on his rank and service time—was originally provided as compensation for hazardous duty. It reported much flying is now done just to meet the four hours a month minimum required to qualify for flight pay.

"With the substantial increase in pay provided for in the recently approved pay legislation," the report said, "now is a good time to make the adjustment" back to flight pay only for those who really merit it.

la Bastille is in eastern Paris. Coty ended his conference with the three party leaders about 5 p.m.

By the Associated Press.

The call from Coty to De Gaulle came only minutes after the conclusion of the meeting. Socialist Guy Mollet, right-wing Independent Antoine Pinay and Pierre-Henri Teitgen of the Catholic Popular Republican Movement had been closeted with the president for an hour and a quarter.

Coty was perhaps trying to prepare political opinion for the call to De Gaulle in talks with the three political leaders.

Noisy But Orderly.

The demonstration, with the crowds massed four blocks down the route, was orderly but noisy. Communists, Socialists and Christian trade unionists had called for the demonstrations.

No police were in sight. The police are controlled by Socialist Jules Moch, who gave tacit approval for the demonstration despite a government ban on all mass meetings.

Demonstrations against De Gaulle also were reported from Marseille.

Many of the restaurant and cafe owners in Paris closed their doors and pulled the iron shutters down to protect the windows.

There were rumblings of discontent from the countryside. Two companies of security troops flown to Paris last week from Toulouse were flown back last night to meet threats from rightists there.

The local governor was reported to have complained to Paris that he was sitting on a tinder box, with the De Gaulleists strong in the region and 10,000 paratroops within quick call.

Underground Loyalist. In the area of Lyon, an underground "Maquis" was reported formed. It was said to include many discharged paratroopers who have thus far formed the military backbone of the drive to bring De Gaulle back to power.

After De Gaulle announced yesterday that he was forming a government without being legally asked, the Assembly rebuffed him by giving Pflimlin a 408-to-165 vote of support.

But the conservative Independents deserted the government on the vote and the party's three ministers quit the cabinet. Pflimlin, weary from day and night efforts to save his government from Gaullists in Algeria and Corsica, then met with the remainder of his two-week-old cabinet and hurried to see Coty at 3 a.m.

The three who quit the cabinet were Reconstruction Minister Pierre Garrel, Industry and Commerce Minister Paul Ribeyre and Agriculture Minister Roland Boscardy - Monservin. They had declared they would not hold office with Communist support.

Pflimlin's Position. Pflimlin said the defection of the Independents had weakened the government at a crucial moment and he could not go on. The President refused to let him step aside until a new Premier was ready to take over, seeking to avoid a power vacuum while France is threatened with civil strife.

The events which led up to Pflimlin's resignation offered started last Monday night.

At De Gaulle's initiative, he and Pflimlin met secretly. "I asked him to use his authority to recall to their sense of duty those who were rising against republican order" but got no assurance, Pflimlin later told the Assembly. A high government source said the Premier agreed to stand aside for the General.

De Gaulle Speaks Too Soon.

De Gaulle's abrupt noon statement yesterday that he had started to form a government blew up any deal with the surprised Pflimlin, who said he had no advance knowledge of the announcement.

On hearing it, Pflimlin left an Assembly debate on his proposed constitutional reforms to strengthen executive powers, met with his cabinet and then said he would stay in office. That made the Assembly's vote approving constitutional reform in principle a test between Pflimlin and De Gaulle.

When the vote came early today, 260 non-Communists and 148 Communists supported Pflimlin and 165 rightists opposed him. Although Pflimlin noted that his government "obtained a majority of the votes after the deduction of Communist votes," Gaullists pointed out that the 260 non-Communists were less than 200 deputies required for a majority of the total membership necessary to pass constitutional reforms.

defeated 63 to 21. The vote came on a substitute measure Senator Kennedy.

Senators Hennings and Symington of Missouri voted for the substitute, as did Douglas of Illinois, also a Democrat. Republican Senator Dirksen of Illinois voted against it.

Administration leaders have called for passage of the House bill without change so that there will be no further delay in extending aid to unemployed who already have exhausted their benefit rights.

The extension in most states would be 13 weeks. The money advanced by the Federal Government would have to be repaid starting in 1963.

A repayment exemption, based on 26 weeks of payments but requiring extension of coverage to additional workers, was rejected yesterday by voice vote. It was offered by Senator Frederick G. Payne (Rep.) Maine.

Proposal by Kennedy.

The major vote yesterday came on Kennedy's proposal to revise the unemployment insurance system on a permanent basis.

The substitute called for extending coverage to all shops with one or more employees and would have required the states to provide benefits for 39 weeks and for not less than half a worker's wage.

Forty Republican Senators and 23 Democrats voted against Kennedy's substitute. Voting for it were 18 Democrats and three Republicans.

Kennedy contended the House-passed measure was "a do-nothing" bill that would prove disillusioning to unemployed workers who have exhausted their jobless payments.

However, Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.) Virginia, floor manager of the bill, protested that Kennedy was trying to "federalize" the unemployment compensation system and dictate to the states the standards they should set.

Federal Reserve View.

The Federal Reserve Board said today it saw some signs of a leveling off in the unemployment situation.

Its monthly bulletin said that since February there had been a slight drop in the number of persons unemployed for four weeks or less. It said this might "indicate that layoffs may be leveling off."

April employment figures showed an increase for the ninth straight month in the seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment. The rate was 7 1/2 per cent of the labor force. May figures will be announced next week.

Although citing some ground for optimism, the board observed that the number of persons vainly seeking work for 15 weeks or longer has more than doubled in the last 12 months. It said the April figure was sharply higher than for any month in the previous post-war recessions.

"This high level indicates the persistently lower hiring rates prevailing throughout industry," it said.

Nonfarm employment, the bulletin said, has dropped more than in either the 1948-49 or 1953-54 slumps.

"In addition to larger reductions in manufacturing," it added, "there has been significant easing in some nonmanufacturing lines that maintained employment in the earlier recession."

Construction employment in April was 5 per cent lower than a year earlier despite the spring pickup in outdoor work.

er is a Republican?" Brown asked.

"I do," the Governor replied.

Opening Statement.

Riley in his opening statement told the 12-man jury that the state would show that Ellison did not make the California trip, but that Litzinger was paid $261.61 in state funds for Ellison's food and lodging on the trip.

Brown agreed, telling the jury that Ellison did not go along as a guard, but that Sheriff Litzinger's wife did accompany the Sheriff on the trip. He said the guard would testify in the case. Brown did not enlarge on the statement.

The charge against the Sheriff was filed last Jan. 22 by Riley.

Riley alleged Litzinger "falsely and fraudulently" obtained the $261.61 from the state, through an expense account executed under oath, on the ground no guard actually made the trip.

Litzinger, after the return of Julian, collected $915 from Roy T. Graham, a professional bondsman who had signed Julian's bond. He also submitted an expense account to the state, which was paid. That account designated Ellison as the guard and listed the expenses as his food and lodging.

Testimony at Hearing.

Gov. Blair testified in the preliminary hearing that he approved the payment of the account, submitted by Litzinger for expenses of Ellison as guard, relying on an affidavit by the sheriff that the expenses were incurred.

Other state witnesses called for the trial include Mrs. Catherine Heake, a secretary in the Governor's office; John E. Hayes, chief accountant in the state comptroller's office; Julian, now serving his prison sentence; employees from the state auditor's office and the state treasurer's office who handle state disbursements and Clarence E. Zinck, cashier of the First National Bank in Clayton.

Brown asked for subpoena forms in blank to be served on defense witnesses, but did not list the names with the circuit clerk here.

In Judge Blair's Court.

Judge Blair presided over the trial. He offered to withdraw because of the presence of his brother in the case. Brown asked Judge Blair to remain in the case.

Judge Blair recently overruled a series of eight motions attacking the information charging the offense of stealing. Most of them were based on contentions that the charge failed to establish venue for the alleged crime in Cole county.

Prosecuting Attorney Riley, whose position was sustained by Judge Blair, contended in a hearing on the defense motions that the venue of the alleged theft was established in Cole county when the check for the $261.61 expense account finally lodged in a bank here which is a depository for state funds.

Sheriff Litzinger has been at liberty under $1000 bond since he pleaded not guilty before a magistrate here last Jan. 23, when he was arraigned under the warrant.

Satellite

as much as a half hour," Porsaid.

Angle Too High.

Apparently the angle of the satellite's direction in relation to the surface of the earth was too high when the third and final stage of the slender rocket fired some 200 to 300 miles above the earth. In order to go into orbit, the final stage would have had to fire while traveling within a few degrees of being parallel to the surface of the earth.

Evidently the arc of the satellite was too elliptical and when it started back down it crashed into the atmosphere instead of passing the earth outside of it and continuing around the globe. The immense friction caused by contact with the dense air of the atmosphere undoubtedly would have burned the gold-plated little moon to a cinder.

It was the fourth Vanguard failure in five tries. The first Vanguard exploded four feet off its launching pad. The second blew apart 20,000 feet off the ground.

The Vanguard on March 17, however, put a 6.4-inch test satellite into the highest orbit so far achieved by this country or Russia.

On April 28 the Vanguard was fired for the first time with a fully-instrumented satellite in its nose, but it failed to go into orbit because of failure of the third stage to ignite.

The Army almost lost its Explorer III satellite because the fourth stage of the Jupiter C rocket fired at too high an angle. The Explorer went into an overly elliptical orbit, and its life span is expected to be comparatively short. The third United States satellite in orbit is Explorer I, blasted up by the Army Jan. 31 as the first United States artificial moon.

KIN OF WAR DEAD TO GET PHOTOS OF CEMETERY ABROAD

WASHINGTON, May 28
(UPI)—Senator Charles E. Potter today announced an American Battle Monuments Commission plan designed to "offer a small measure of comfort" to the families of service men and women who died in World War II.

The Michigan Republican, a member of the commission, said the group is ready to send the families of service personnel who were buried in eight overseas military cemeteries in Europe and Africa photographs of the cemetery and the head-stones of their relative.

Potter said photographs would be available later for the families of service personnel buried in six other World War II cemeteries abroad.

The cemeteries for which photographs are ready are Cambridge, England; St. Laurent, St. James, Epinal and Draguignan, all in France;
Margraten, Holland; Nettuno-Anzio, Italy; and Carthage, Tunisia.

Eisenhower

with them individually. He pointed out, for example, that if the United States tries to do something for Formosa or France, other countries will be affected.

Can't Be a Boss, He Says.

Carrying on foreign policy is a very intricate business, Mr.
Eisenhower said—more of an art than a science. The United States, he went on, follows a policy of live and let live. It cannot be a boss, but must try to use persuasion. He added that the statesmen who called on him from time to time were in agreement on the complexity of world affairs.

On the subject of diplomacy,
Mr. Eisenhower recommended a "rule of reason" to guide American diplomats in their contacts with other countries.
He said he did not condone soft living instead of hard work, but he pointed out that Americans would resent a foreign diplomat going around haranguing crowds in this country and said it would be equally objectionable for Americans to do this in other countries. Certain rules of deportment are observed worldwide, he said.

The President's remarks were in response to a request for comment on an editorial in a Florida newspaper. The editorial criticized the State Department for too much "scotch and soda diplomacy" and for not requiring all diplomats to learn at least one foreign language.

The President said language education was vital. He suggested the department may have been careless in failing to insist on more study in this field.

Middle East Doctrine.

The President was asked whether the Administration is now interpreting the so-called Eisenhower doctrine for the Middle East as more extensive than it was considered to be at the time of its adoption in March of 1957. At a news conference last week Secretary of State John Foster Dulles appeared to be trying to interpret the doctrine to fit the situation in Lebanon, where the pro-Western government is in trouble.

The President replied he personally did not regard the present interpretation as different from the earlier final interpretation. He said that as long as the governments involved are friendly certain actions can be taken beyond the provision for reaction in the event of Communist aggression. He said this had not been invoked. He did not specify what action might be taken.

The Eisenhower doctrine is directed at the threat of "international Communism." Lebanon has charged the threat to its stability comes from the United Arab Republic.

Asked whether the United States is being forced to reasess its foreign policy because of the current crises, the President said a daily check is kept of what new duties and responsibilities might devolve on this country.
There is no such thing, he said, as forming a military or other policy and standing pat on it; the country must keep actively studying the world situation.

As the whether the Pentagon and State Department are taking a "new look" at the problem of small, or "brush-fire" wars, Mr. Eisenhower said that is a subject that is discussed regularly.

De Gaulle No Threat to NATO,

Wright Says.

CLEVELAND, O., May 28
(UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle's prospective rise to power represents no threat to NATO, Adm. Jerauld Wright, supreme NATO naval commander and chief of the United State Atlantic fleet, said here today.

"I have known Gen. de Gaulle for a long time, and I do not know him to be anti-NATO," Wright said in an interview. Regardless of what happens in France, I am sure the French people will remain sympathetic to NATO and any emerging French government will be favorably disposed to our purposes," Wright said.

AUTHORITY ENDS, FHA SHUTS DOWN LOAN INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration shut down its home loan insurance business yesterday because it had run out of authority to insure housing loans.

At about the same time FHA Commissioner Norman Mason announced this, Senator Homer E. Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, told the Senate that unless Congress votes more authority quickly the home building industry faces a 30-day shut-down.

"Somebody is having politics in this," Capehart shouted on the Senate floor. He said he and Senator John Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, had tried unsuccessfully last week and this week to get a Senate vote on a four billion dollar increase for FHA.

Capehart directed his remarks at Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. Johnson and the Democratic Policy Committee control legislation coming before the Senate.

Up Soon, Johnson Says. Johnson replied that the FHA increase would be considered along with a general housing bill which will reach the Senate shortly.

Capehart pointed out that the Senate Banking Committee had unanimously approved the four billions of additional FHA insurance May 19 as separate legislation.

If this is tied up to omnibus housing legislation, Capehart said it may be delayed for 30 days or longer.

Capehart said the omnibus housing bill contains more than 80 pages and many controversial features.

Mason said he wired the agency's 75 field offices to discontinue making commitments to insure mortgages.

Two weeks ago when FHA asked Congress to increase its insurance authorization by four billion dollars it estimated its previous authorizations would last until June 10.

The ceiling was reached ahead of expectations, a spokesman said, because the volume of applications for insurance has increased markedly in recent weeks. Applications during the first two weeks of May, for example, totaled 8300 compared with 3700 in the same period a year ago.

At present FHA has insured home loans worth about $25,700,000,000, which is the limit set by Congress.

FHA insures private loans and does not lend money itself.

Mortgage-Buying Funds. New York Times News Service.

On the other hand, the Administration released another $300,000,000 yesterday for the anti-recession mortgage-buying program of the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Activity in the program, after a dip in the week ended May 15, picked up again last week, though not to the peak levels of earlier this month. Without the release of additional funds, the original allotments of $300,000,000 would have been used up early next month.

The emergency anti-recession housing bill provided one billion dollars for the program. Under the program, "Fanny May" enters commitments to purchase at par Government-backed mortgages on proposed new construction. J. Stanley Baughman, president of the agency, said commitments worth $220,122,000 for 18,549 mortgages has been signed up. In the latest week, commitments were entered into for 3422 mortgages valued at $40,232,000, slightly more than half being mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Commitments Halted Here Pending Authorization.

No further mortgage insurance commitments are being made in St. Louis until specific authorization is received from Washington headquarters of the Federal Housing Administration. St. Louis FHA Director Alan T. Smith said today.

Smith said a commitment issued by his office last Monday to the Urban Redevelopment Corp. of St. Louis on a $2,493,200 loan on the first of six apartment buildings to be constructed in the Plaza area was not affected by the cessation order.

However, he added that commitments on the remaining three loans could not be made until authorized by Washington. He said it was hoped that additional authorization would be passed by Congress before any of the remaining Plaza applications are filed.

JURY ACQUITS 'CHIN' GIGANTE IN COSTELLO ATTACK

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Vincent (Chin) Gigante was acquitted last night of the attempted assassination of racketeer Frank Costello last year in an apartment house lobby.

The jury deliberated more than six hours.

A man fired a single shot at Costello May 2, 1957, in the lobby of his apartment building. The bullet only grazed the gambler's skull, and Costello quickly recovered.

Assistant District Attorney Alexander Herman had said Gigante was commissioned to kill Costello, once the big man of the nation's underworld.

Costello testified that he did not see his would-be assassin and knew of no motive for the attack.

The only witness at the trial who placed Gigante on the scene of the shooting was Norval Keith, doorman at Costello's apartment building. He testified for the state.

PRESIDENT SIGNS POSTAL BILL BUT FINDS IT FAULTY

WASHINGTON, May 28—President Eisenhower signed the combined postal rate and pay bill yesterday. His action means that first-class letter mail will require 4 instead of 3 cents postage starting Aug. 1.

The President objected strongly to several features of the bill but signed it "because it is clear that those provisions which are in the public interest outweigh the objectionable provisions."

Because Congress had refused to boost postage rates to 5 cents for out-of-town mail, the President indicated that his proposed two billion dollar Post Office modernization program will not proceed. He asked that Congress "promptly reconsider its action in this respect so that the program can go forward."

Besides increasing ordinary letter postage from 3 to 4 cents, the new law boosts air mail from 6 to 7 cents, post cards from 2 to 3 cents, and air mail postcards from 4 to 5 cents, all effective Aug. 1. The increase in the ordinary letter rate was the first in a quarter century.

Postage on unsealed Christmas cards will be 3 cents instead of the present 2 cents.

Other Rate Increases.

The new law also carries a complicated set of rate increases for second-class and third-class mail, books and catalogs, and bulk mail. Several of these increases go into effect gradually over a period of three years, starting next Jan. 1.

Altogether, the bill is expected to bring in about $500,000,000 of extra postal revenue when in full effect—enough to cover most but not all of the annual postal deficit. The deficit has been increasing each year and was estimated at $700,000,000 for fiscal year 1959 in the President's January budget.

However, the bill also carried pay increases for postal workers beyond the recommendations of the Administration. The pay increases are retroactive to last Jan. 1, a provision that alone will add $90,000,000 of immediate expenses. On an annual basis, the pay increases will cost $265,000,000.

Although he objected to the "costly" retroactivity provision, the President did not oppose the amount of the pay increases so much as their distribution among different salary grades. He said the bill "provides liberal increases to non-supervisory employees but greatly distorts the pay structure by reducing the proportionate benefits to the high-level postmaster, supervisory, technical and professional personnel."

The increases would be about 10 per cent in the lowest grades, ranking down to zero for the very highest. The President called this "contrary to every sound management principle" and said if the bill had provided for postal pay alone, he would have seriously considered vetoing it.

Details on Postal Rates.

Here are the effective dates and increases in postal rates:

First class (All effective Aug. 1, 1958):

Letters—From 3 to 4 cents an ounce.

Post cards—From 2 to 3 cents each.

Air mail letters—From 6 to 7 cents an ounce.

Air mail cards—From 4 to 5 cents each.

Second class (Newspapers and magazines):

From 2.6 cents in zone 3 to 3 on Jan. 1, 1959; and to 3.5 on Jan. 1, 1960; and to 4 on Jan. 1, 1961. From 3.9 cents in zone 4 to 4.5 on Jan. 1, 1959; to 5.2 on Jan. 1, 1960; to 6 on Jan. 1, 1961. From 7.8 cents in zone 7 to 9.2 on Jan. 1, 1959; to 11 on Jan. 1, 1960; and to 12 on Jan. 1, 1961. From 9.1 cents in zone 8 to 11 on Jan. 1, 1959; to 13 on Jan. 1, 1960; and to 14 on Jan. 1, 1961.

Minimum Per Copy—From 1/2 cent each to 1/4 cent on Jan. 1, 1959; to 1/2 cent on Jan. 1, 1960; and to 1/2 cent on Jan. 1, 1961. This applies generally to publication very light in weight.

Transient—2-cent rate on first two ounces remains the same; present rate of 1 cent on each additional 2 ounces changed to 1 cent on each additional ounce effective Aug. 1, 1958. This applies to publications mailed by other than publishers or news agents.

From the present 10 cents a pound for publications weighing 8 ounces or less and 11 cents a pound for those weighing more than 8 ounces to a flat rate of 12 cents a pound, on Aug. 1, 1958. The existing rate of 1 cent a piece is retained.

CORNERED 'POSSUM RESCUED

An opossum, which wandered into the 3200 block of Longfellow boulevard last night, was rescued from a pack of curious dogs by a field worker of the Humane Society of Missouri.

The society's agent made two trips to Longfellow before he was able to find the frightened animal. At the shelter at 1210 Mackland avenue, it was found that the 'possum "apparently held his own against the dogs," Fritz Grolock, director, said, "because there was hardly a scratch on him."

REDS MAKE NEW POPULAR FRONT APPEAL IN ITALY

ROME, May 28 (UPI)—The Italian Communist party made a new bid for a "popular front" with Socialists today. They aim at crippling any government set up by the Christian Democrats.

Communist party boss Palmiro Togliatti, playing on the fears of the leftwing (PSI) Socialists stemming from the Christian Democratic election gains, said the Communists were ready to "reach an understanding with all those who move in the same direction with us."

It was a pitch for a return to the extreme left coalition which fell apart after the Soviet Red Army crushed the Hungarian revolt in the fall of 1956.

If it succeeds, it could cause any future government trouble since the Christian Democrats did not win an absolute majority in either house of Parliament.

Thus, they will have to rely on one or more of the minor center parties to form a coalition government.

In the elections held Sunday and Monday, the Christian Democrats won 42.4 per cent of the popular vote, up 2.5 per cent from the 1953 general elections. They won 122 seats in the Senate, one less than a majority, but an increase of 12 over 1953. They won 273 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, up 12 from 1953 but 26 short of a majority.

The Communists and extreme leftists won 36.4 per cent of the popular vote, up 1.2 per cent from 1953. Both sides gained at the expense of the extreme right.

The Christian Democrats and other moderate center parties, were expected to have no trouble controlling Parliament but establishing a government was another matter.

The center coalition which previously was in power fell apart last spring. By tacit agreement the Christian Democrats ruled without a majority until the elections.

The moderate Social Democrats, with 23 seats in the new Chamber of Deputies, appeared unenthusiastic about a renewal of the coalition.

Other moderate parties won 28 seats in the Chamber.

MAGDA GABOR'S APARTMENT ROBBER; HUSBAND BOUND

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Two men wearing gay woolen mittens yesterday invaded the apartment of actress Magda Gabor. They bound and gagged her husband and stole cash and jewelry valued by her at more than $25,000.

The husband, contractor Arthur Gallucci, was alone in the apartment when the men, posing as delivery men, pushed their way in. Magda, oldest of the three Gabor sisters, was at a beauty parlor.

The robbers seized a maid who returned to the apartment while they were ransacking it, tied her up, and sealed her mouth with tape.

The woolen mittens evidently were to guard against leaving fingerprints.

JERRY LEE LEWIS ARRIVES HOME WITH CHILD BRIDE

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Rock 'n' roll warbler Jerry Lee Lewis flew home from Britain today, nonchalantly chewing gum and denying he was hooted out of England because of his marriage to a 13-year-old girl. He maintained that he was very well treated there.

Asked for comment on public reaction to his marriage to his cousin, Lewis, who is 22, retorted that "I know lots of people here who are married to 13-year-olds."

Kissing his bride, his third wife, on the forehead, Lewis said "she'll be 14 in July, and I'll tell you she's a woman."

Arriving with the couple were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brown. Brown is a bass fiddle player.

HOUSE HEARINGS SET ON CHICAGO'S U. S. ATTORNEY

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28—A House Judiciary subcommittee will hold hearings beginning June 11 on "alleged misconduct in office" by United States Attorney Robert S. Ticken of Chicago, Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, announced today.

Celler said the subcommittee had "received information alleging a conflict of interest on the part of Mr. Ticken and alleging an abuse by him of the powers of his office." A preliminary inquiry has been made by the staff of the anti-trust subcommittee.

The Post-Dispatch disclosed last March that Ticken's actions were under investigation by the House group in connection with a $34,500 settlement he received for the sale of 11 acres of land to the Illinois Toll Highway Commission.

In a statement announcing the hearings, Celler said the subcommittee submitted a report on its investigation to Attorney General William P. Rogers on April 21. "No action was taken by the Attorney General," the chairman added.

Questioned Secretly.
Celler, who also heads the full House Judiciary Committee, said the subcommittee questioned Ticken secretly on March 20.

Celler said the subcommittee has received charges that Ticken "caused federal grand jury subpoenas to be served against four state officials connected with Illinois road building at a time when he (Ticken) and his attorney were seeking to obtain a favorable settlement in land condemnation suits brought against Mr. Ticken personally by Illinois road building agencies."

"This land, owned by Mr. Ticken, was needed for construction of the Illinois Tri-state Toll Highway. According to these charges, while the subpoenas were issued against these four state officials when the pending suits against Mr. Ticken were at a crucial stage, they were withdrawn by Mr. Ticken as soon as his condemnation suits were successfully settled out of court."

Purpose of Inquiry.
Celler said the subcommittee would seek to determine "whether Mr. Ticken used his position as United States Attorney, and the powers of that office, for personal gain."

The 31 acres of land acquired by the toll commission were from Ticken's farm at Libertyville, Ill.

Ticken's term as United States attorney expired March 17 but he has continued in the position pending appointment of a successor. Ticken has been recommended by Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, to fill a vacancy in the United States Court of Appeals.

Other Allegations.
Celler said "other allegations with respect to Mr. Ticken's conduct in office will also be examined" by the subcommittee. A list of witnesses will be announced later.

The facts in the case, the chairman went on, should determine whether additional legislation is needed in the field of conflict of interest and whether supervision and control of United States attorneys by the Attorney General is adequate.

Ticken has said it was his opinion there had been collusion in bidding in the toll road program, and that federal laws were violated. He said he dropped the inquiry to avoid interference with an income

MAN SOUGHT BY FBI NABBED BY POLICE IN TAVERN HERE

A former convict sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for Dyer Act violation was arrested in a downtown tavern by St. Louis police yesterday.

He was booked for federal authorities as Alden O. Wolfe, 42 years old, of Bluefield, W. Va. Search of an apartment he rented in the 7100 block of Delmar boulevard, University City, revealed 64 ignition keys for General Motors cars, Kentucky and New Jersey license plates, receipts for the sale of six automobiles, title blanks and a small printing outfit. Parked outside was an air-conditioned Cadillac, with Tennessee license, which is being traced.

Wolfe, who served a federal prison sentence for Dyer Act violation, admitted, opined said, that he stole and sold four or five cars in southern states in recent weeks. He arrived in St. Louis last Saturday.

WALTER H. HEINER ELECTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 28—Walter H. Heiner, 314 Park road, Webster Groves, was elected governor of District 26A of Lions International at the organization's annual state convention here yesterday. The district includes St. Louis and eight counties in eastern and central Missouri.

Heiner, a district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., is a former president of the downtown St. Louis Lions Club.

tax investigation of two officials he subpoenaed. Real estate operators said the price Ticken received for his land, $3127 an acre, was about the same other land owners were paid.

NO-TRUE BILL RETURNED IN STREET FIGHT STABBING

The circuit court grand jury refused yesterday to indict Eugene M. Stealey in the fatal stabbing of 18-year-old Fred S. Sweeney in a street fight last April 16.

Stealey, 5329 Lotus avenue, admitted wielding a knife in the fight but stated he did not realize he had stabbed Sweeney until he saw blood on his hands. Circuit Attorney Thomas F. Eagleton had refused to issue a warrant against Stealey. After yesterday's no-true bill was returned, Eagleton said the evidence had indicated Sweeney and his associates were the aggressors in the fight and there was a lack of evidence on details of the killing.

NEW KREML CORRECTIVE STOPS HAIR DECAY

BEWARE OF HAIR DECAY
Infected dandruff causes scratching which may carry infection to hair follicle...and may cause that hair to fall out!

When stubborn, infected dandruff piles up on your scalp—beware! An itchy, scaly condition may develop. This often results in scratching which may carry infection deep down to the root of a hair follicle. The follicle may be killed, causing that hair to fall out. We call this HAIR DECAY.

Not prevent baldness. Nor can anything else.

But this medication does quickly relieve itchy scalp caused by infected dandruff. And when it relieves the urge to scratch deep down, you avoid infecting the follicle... which may cause that hair to fall out. Then HAIR DECAY stops!

So use New KREML CORRECTIVE daily to stop Hair Decay. Ask for the New KREML CORRECTIVE today.

KREML Corrective

Stubborn, clinging infected dandruff that piles up here may lead to an itchy, scaly scalp.

Then scratching may carry infection to the root of a hair follicle, killing the follicle, causing that hair to fall out.

But now, New KREML CORRECTIVE stops Hair Decay by destroying the germ which grows in infected dandruff.

U.S. MINIMIZES SOVIET TROOP PULLBACK PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UPI)—United States officials belittled today Russia's announced plans to withdraw troops from Romania and reduce forces in Hungary.

What is needed, they said, is a comprehensive disarmament plan including inspection to prove Russia and other signatories really are cutting down their armed forces.

The officials said withdrawal of troops from Romania still would leave Soviet forces poised on the borders ready to re-enter, and that withdrawal of one Russian division from Hungary does not amount to much. The Soviets are estimated to have 100,000 troops in Hungary.

The officials made it clear the United States still opposes a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Communist Warsaw pact nations.

The Soviet bloc announced in a communique Monday that Russia planned to pull its forces out of Romania and one division out of Hungary. The bloc also urged a 25-year non-aggression pact between the Warsaw pact and NATO.

The United States replied last night with a new challenge to Russia to agree to an overall disarmament pact.

"The announced withdrawal of Soviet troops and reductions in strength of the Warsaw pact members would have important significance for an improvement in the situation with regard to relationships between the Communist and non-Communist countries if it were to be accompanied by a general controlled disarmament agreement which involved verifiable reductions in forces and arms inside the Soviet Union," the State Department said in a formal statement.

It said Russia's plan to pull back its forces might be a "favorable development" if it leads to greater independence for Romania and Hungary.

Discussing the Communist appeal for a non-aggression pact, officials noted that former Premier Bulganin proposed a similar treaty in a letter to President Eisenhower last Dec. 10. The President brushed it aside by noting that all NATO nations already are pledged by the United Nations charter not to engage in aggression.

17,000 Soviet Troops Already Gone, Hungary Says

BUDAPEST, May 28 (AP)—Hungarian Communist leaders Janos Kadar says the 17,000 troops which the Russians promised to pull out of Hungary early this year have already left.

He did not say how many remain. Western estimates put the number between 50,000 to 100,000. The Russians now say they are going to withdraw another division. From 10,000 to 13,000 men.

Kadar's statement was made last Saturday at a meeting of the East European Communist countries in Moscow. It has just been reported by the Hungarian news agency MTI.

40-POUND WOLF SHOT NEAR HOME ON CLAYTON ROAD

A female wolf was shot and killed in St. Louis county early today by Lester W. Litzinger, an excavating contractor living at Clayton and Woods Mill roads.

Litzinger, a brother of Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger, said he looked out a window about 6 o'clock, and saw the wolf in an oats field, about 100 yards from his house. Grabbing his deer rifle, the contractor ran outside. A single shot through the neck felled the animal.

The wolf, weighing about 40 pounds, was one of two seen recently in the Woods Mill road area. Litzinger brought the dead wolf to Clayton Court-house to collect the $15 bounty. He plans to keep an eye peeled for the second wolf.

889 OF 1266 CARS CHECKED HAVE SOME SAFETY DEFECT

A total of 889 of 1266 automobiles tested Monday and yesterday in a "safety check lane" in Forest Park were found to have some safety defect, William F. Yorgler, managing director of the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis, reported today.

He said 477 of the cars tested had defective brakes, the most frequently found shortcoming. Other principal defects and the number of automobiles in which each was reported included: Rear lights, 290; unsafe tires, 269; and faulty steering mechanism, 125.

The free checkup began Monday and will end tomorrow. It is being conducted on the parking lot of the Mark C. Steinberg Memorial Skating Rink from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. under sponsorship of the Safety Council.

3 YEARS ON CHECK CHARGE

Alex Gyurica, a painter living on Route 1, Millstadt, was sentenced to three years in prison yesterday by United States District Judge William G. Juergens in East St. Louis for possessing a check stolen from the mail. He pleaded guilty May 13.

The check belonged to a man who had sold some livestock at National Stock Yards. Gyurica has been arrested 16 times since 1948.

PHONY POLICEMAN ARRESTS WRONG PAIR—TWO COPS

A make-believe policeman who in three years has stopped some 250 drivers for speeding—all in the name of safe driving—met his destiny yesterday. He picked up two off-duty St. Louis county policemen.

Patrolmen William Stanford and Bob Williams were driving home shortly after 3 p.m. in Stanford's car on Lindbergh boulevard. They heard a siren behind them and saw in the rear-view mirror a red light flashing. They pulled up at Adie road, and the car stopped ahead of them.

The driver, who later identified himself as Charles E. Crecelius of the 3400 block of North Lindbergh, told Stanford he was "driving too damned fast," and added: "I'll lock you up if you get smart."

At that point, the officers disclosed their identity. They found a .32-caliber revolver in the glove compartment of the car. Crecelius said he had never used the pistol, but had been doing his bit for safety. He was charged in a warrant with impersonating an officer.

the foundation will be royalties from the sale of Leopold's book "Life Plus 99 Years." Elmer Gertz, Chicago attorney who led Leopold's long fight for parole, said the Leopold foundation was granted a charter by the Illinois Secretary of State April 18. That was a month after Leopold was paroled from Stateville penitentiary.

Leopold, now 54 years old, was sentenced in 1924 to life and 99 years for his part in the kidnaping and killing of 14-year-old Bobby Franks. He now is a $10-a-month technician at a Brethren service hospital at Castaner, Puerto Rico.

PARTNER IN AMERICA'S NEW SCIENTIFIC AGE

What is this giant crane unloading? Steel girders by the carloads.

What are they for? The gigantic new Glen Canyon dam in northern Arizona that will turn a vast wasteland into a modern productive area.

When will it be finished? In six years. Already mountains of materials and equipment are being unloaded at Flagstaff, the nearest railhead.

How are they getting there? On the Santa Fe, America's longest railroad. Now more important than ever because it is moving raw and finished materials essential for the new scientific age as well as the basic things like potatoes, oil, and frozen foods that America needs every day.

CRITICIZES CURTIS FOR HIS ATTACK ON SUPREME COURT

Representative Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), Webster Groves, who criticized the United States Supreme Court last week for its decision in the Watkins case, was taken to task by Thomas H. Elliot, head of the Washington University department of political science, in a letter made public today.

Un-American Activities Committee, whose activities were curtailed by the court, described the decision as "a new low in legal scholarship." His statement was in reply to a letter by 21 Washington University faculty members who had asked him to try to curtail the committee's power. Elliot, who was not among the 21 faculty members, wrote Curtis: "What is both surprising and disturbing is the bitter language with which you assail the Supreme Court. It is not the Court's duty to

who recently became public relations director of the Teamsters international union, with headquarters in Washington.

Zagri formerly practiced law in Los Angeles and was in the dress manufacturing business there and in Chicago from 1945 to 1954, when he joined the Teamsters. He earlier had served with the National Labor Relations Board and was a staff member of the Senate LaFollette committee in the late 1930s.

Zagri attended the University of California, Harvard and Wisconsin University law school and took graduate studies in law at the University of Chicago.

MERGER IDEA SPLITS COUNTY EDUCATORS

A plan for drastically reducing the number of school districts in St. Louis county drew both support and opposition at a meeting of the county board of education last night.

Speakers favoring the plan said it would eliminate present inequities in assessed valuation of school districts, equalize educational opportunities and make possible more comprehensive educational programs. Opponents expressed objections to creating large districts and to equalizing valuations.

The plan, proposed by Edgar C. Miller, assistant principal of Fairview High School, contemplates reducing the number of school districts from 29 to 5. Richard S. Jones, president of the Ladue school board, said state law does not require the county board to consider equalization of districts in any reorganization plan.

Leupold said the board expects to propose a reorganization plan "by mid-summer." He said the proposal by Miller "is not the best solution to the county's problems" but added that it is still under consideration. The board also has considered a plan for eliminating districts that do not operate high schools or that have fewer than 1500 pupils.

COMPROMISES OFFERED ON WATER PROJECT BILLS

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Comprise water project bills to replace a one and a half billion dollar measure vetoed by President Eisenhower in April were introduced yesterday in the House and Senate.

A House bill offered by Representative Clifford Davis (Dem.), Tennessee, includes $5,802,000 for work on the Mississippi between St. Louis and lock and dam No. 26, and $400,000,000 for work in the Missouri river basin.

It also has $12,231,000 for navigation projects in Illinois including $246,000 for a commercial harbor and $101,000 for a small boat harbor at Alton; $9,884,000 for the Calumet-Sag channel and $2,000,000 for the Illinois-Mississippi canal.

MAPLEWOOD SCHOOL BONDS FAIL AGAIN; 29 VOTES SHORT

A proposed $1,200,000 bond issue failed to win approval by a narrow margin for the second time in an election yesterday in the Maplewood-Richmond Heights school district.

The vote was 929 in favor of the proposal and 508 against, 29 short of the required two-thirds majority.

The proposal failed by 34 votes at an election April 1. Approval would have meant an increase of 12 cents in the current tax rate of $2.99 on each $100 of assessed property valuation.

UAW PROPOSES FEDERAL MEDIATION IN NEGOTIATIONS

DETROIT, May 28 (AP)—The United Auto Workers made a bid for Government help today to break a deadlock in contract negotiations with the automobile industry.

The UAW proposed that the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service enter negotiations. General Motors said it already had met with this group and was convinced that it is too late now for the mediators to help.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW vice president in charge of G.M. negotiations, told newsmen G.M. had made a farce of negotiations by standing firm on its original proposal to extend the wage formula of the present contract.

Woodcock said negotiations were continuing. But, he said, it will take a miracle to reach a settlement before the G.M. contract expires at midnight tomorrow.

YOUTH FINED $75, ARRESTED AFTER CHASE UNDER FIRE

Harold Bullock, 19 years old, arrested early Monday after a stolen automobile he was driving was struck by a number of bullets in a police chase, was fined a total of $75 yesterday on traffic charges by Provisional Police Judge Frank Bledsoe.

He pleaded guilty of speeding and failure to observe seven stop signs. The chase ended at the foot of Rutger street, after police shot the rear tires of the machine.

Bullock was charged with automobile theft in a warrant issued Monday. He lives on Morrison lane, in the Clinton-Peabody housing project.

FIRES AT AUTO FLEEING STORE, YOUTH KILLED

Leonard Anderson, 17 years old, of the 3800 block of Easton avenue, was shot and killed early today when hit by a shot fired at a fleeing automobile.

Leo G. Howard, who lives at 700 Union boulevard, told police he fired one shot at the machine about 1 a.m. after seeing its three occupants prowling in the apartment courtyard and a parking lot under his third-floor quarters. They were outside a drug store.

Howard had telephoned police before shooting, and he gave a description of the car. It was stopped by two officers seven blocks east on Easton, at Marcus avenue. Anderson, shot in the back, was in the front seat beside the driver. He was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

The driver, who identified himself as John Henry Williams of the 4200 block of Easton, and a man in the back seat, Tommy Lee of the 4300 block of Cozens avenue, said they have given Anderson a ride to the parking lot.

A drug store on the ground floor of the apartment building, had been entered. One case of whiskey had been taken outside, and two were stacked near a door. The door to the liquor storeroom was open. Williams and Lee were hooked suspected of burglary. Howard, 44, a chauffeur, was not held.

Jacob Schacklin, operator of a drug store at 5314 Lillian avenue, was robbed of $224 shortly before 6 p.m. yesterday by two men who forced him to go to the basement. A customer who walked in, Ernest Quint of 2911A Hillsman avenue, St. John, was robbed of $90.

of the Assembly session the tragic futility of Pflimlin seemed painfully evident. He was confessing almost in so many words that he could not govern and yet he could not step out of office as there was no one else on whom authority could center.

Having said that he would not count the 142 Communist votes, he fell short of the necessary majority for his reform of the constitution by 30 votes.

It was consequently the frailest kind of caretaker government that undertook to keep order in the face of announced demonstrations from the non-Communist unions defying the government bar against public assembly or any organized protest.

Coty began the old routine of calling the leading politicians to the Elysee Palace—Guy Mollet, Antoine Pinay, Henri Pierre Teitgen. No one in this cynical, apathetic, disillusioned capital believed that a new coalition of the parties could be put together. And yet no one seemed to know what the alternative would be.

HOW STRATEGY PLAN WENT AWRY

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio Copyright, 1958.

By PAUL GHALI
PARIS, May 28—Few Frenchmen, and even fewer foreigners, have any real awareness of the backstage events that have marked the French crisis in the last 24 hours.

These events have followed one another like sequences in a movie scenario. They promised to catapult Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, dumped him at 10 o'clock in the evening and then gave him another chance by this morning.

Here, from an authoritative source in a position to know, is what happened during those fateful 24 hours that will change France's destiny for better or for worse.

The three-act drama has as its leading characters, Premier Pflimlin, President Rene Coty, and its villains, Socialist leader Guy Mollet and radical leftist Francois Mitterand.

Alerted Monday night on an imminent landing in France of paratroopers from Algeria, Pflimlin called on Gen. De Gaulle to meet him immediately. At the same time in order to stave off the danger a news agency here was broadcasting a report that Coty was already meeting with De Gaulle.

Appeal by Pflimlin.
Pflimlin asked De Gaulle to intervene immediately with the Algerian generals to prevent civil war. De Gaulle said he was in no position to persuade Algiers unless he could at the same time announced that steps were being taken to bring him back to power which Algiers is known to wish.

Pflimlin agreed to resign. The scenario arranged among Coty, Pflimlin and Mollet, who was consulted by telephone, ran like this:

Pflimlin would announce his resignation to Parliament late Tuesday morning to prevent more secessions.

Whereupon De Gaulle would announce his readiness to come to power and would advise leaders in Paris and Algiers to keep quiet.

Coty would then send a message to De Gaulle. De Gaulle would answer by indicating the names of his ministers, designating Mollet as both Vice President of the cabinet and his personal representative in Parliament.

Mollet was entrusted with the difficult task of moving the majority of Parliament in favor of De Gaulle by explaining that the General was the only man who could unite France.

Mollet apparently sent a letter to the General, accepting the task on condition that De Gaulle would discourage any paratroop landings in France.

But events failed to develop according to plan.

In Parliament intervention of Mitterand cornered Premier Pflimlin and prevented him from announcing his resignation. Mitterand drew wide applause from the leftist majority by calling on the Premier to "save the democracy."

De Gaulle's majestic premature declaration irked the Socialist deputies who immediately met in Mollet's absence and voted 112 to 3 against De Gaulle's return.

Mollet, when informed, had to follow suit despite his arrangement with Pflimlin and De Gaulle.

LOW BID FOR PAVING BROADWAY IS $197,525

A low bid of $197,525 for the paving of Broadway between Chippewa and Utah streets was submitted to the Board of Public Service yesterday by the Maintenance Engineering Co.

There were five other bidders for the project, part of the widening of Broadway under provisions of the 1944 bond issue. The city's estimate for the paving was $232,000.

The Granite Bituminous Paving Co. submitted a low bid of $30,305 for the resurfacing of Riverview drive from Broadway to the Halls Ferry Circle, a 1955 bond project on which the city's estimate was $35,000.

HEARING JUNE 23 ON ILLINOIS SUIT AGAINST EPPING FIRM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 28—Arguments in a suit by the State of Illinois to recover $467,201 from the accounting firm in which Edward Epping was a partner will be heard here June 23, it was announced today.

Circuit Judge Creel Douglas yesterday vacated his dismissal of the suit, brought last December against Fred M. Messenger & Co., after the state's suit was corrected to refer to the conflict of interest law in effect in 1955, instead of the law as amended in 1957. The state's contract with the accounting firm was in effect in 1955.

The state contended that Epping was office manager in the office of former State Auditor Orville E. Hodge at the time the contract was in effect and, therefore, he violated the conflict of interest law. Epping and Hodge are serving prison terms as a result of scandals in the auditor's office.

U.S., Soviet Should Join Against Heart Ills, Cancer, Russian Says

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 28—Russia and the United States ought to join forces in the medical fight against heart disease and cancer, which are the leading causes of death in both nations, the Soviet deputy minister of public health said in an interview today.

Dr. Victor Zhdanov, chief Russian delegate to the world health assembly here, said the exchange of medical and scientific information between the Soviet Union and the United States was now increasing rapidly, with excellent results.

Both countries, Dr. Zhdanov observed, have succeeded in cutting down the death rate from communicable diseases such as malaria, typhoid fever and tuberculosis, and both now are warring against cancer ailments of the heart and blood vessels.

"I'd like to express our thanks to your doctors who helped with the Salk vaccine against poliomyelitis," he said. "We have real friends in this country."

Exchange of Doctors. Dr. Zhdanov referred to the exchange of medical delegations between the United States and Russia in the last two years, and to American help in the Russian program for vaccinating children against polio. He said approximately 3,000,000 Russian children had received the vaccine.

Russia returned to the World Health Organization last year after an absence of several years.

Medical and economic progress in Russia during the last four decades, Dr. Zhdanov said, have brought tremendous advances in life expectancy. He said the general death rate had been cut from 30.2 a thousand to 7.5 a thousand.

He said in 1913 some 273 children of each thousand that were born could be expected to die before reaching one year of age. In 1957, he said, the comparable rate had dropped to 45 a thousand.

"We are not satisfied, and hope to decrease the figure even more," he said, remarking "the best is an enemy of good."

While the Soviet Union is delighted to learn about American medico-scientific experience and techniques, Dr. Zhdanov emphasized, Russia also is anxious to pass along to the United States some of the things Soviet scientists have learned.

For example, Russia has done a great deal with "live" vaccines against certain ailments, whereas American scientists tend to use "killed" vaccines as a means of developing immunity. The difference is in the degree to which the infectious germs have been made impotent.

Dr. Zhdanov said that in one case of Asian flu Russia used a "live" vaccine and administered several million doses with good results. It was given by nasal spray, rather than by injection; a technique the Russians considered simpler when handling large numbers of people.

When Dr. Zhdanov came to the United States for the WHO conference, he brought some samples of the Russian influenza vaccine and left them with the Rockefeller Institute. "I think," he said, "that the live vaccine gives the most perfect immunity."

Dr. Zhdanov and another Russian delegate, Dr. Nicolai Grashchenkov, professor of neurology at the University of Moscow, described the extensive Soviet program for examining factory workers and others to head off early cases of cancer and heart disease.

Annual Examinations. At present, they estimated, approximately 60,000,000 Russians get an annual physical examination.

Great care is taken to detect early heart and blood vessel disease in professional and executive people who work under tension. If necessary, these people are sent to convalescent hospitals in resort areas where they receive rest and other treatment, including psychotherapy.

The Soviet cigarette Dr.

sians get an annual physical examination.

Great care is taken to detect early heart and blood vessel disease in professional and executive people who work under tension. If necessary, these people are sent to convalescent hospitals in resort areas where they receive rest and other treatment, including psychotherapy.

The Soviet cigarette Dr.

Zhdanov was smoking was nearly an inch longer than an American kingsize cigarette. It consisted of a long paper tube attached to a very short extension containing tobacco. There was no filter, just the long tube.

Dr. Zhdanov said with a grin that the paper tube had nothing to do with the lung cancer scare. It was just a way of keeping tobacco shreds out of the mouth.

Ormandy and Orchestra Win Triumph in Skeptical Moscow

New York Times News Service.
MOSCOW, May 28 — This city likes to think of itself as the sophisticated world capital, but by the end of last night's concert here by the Philadelphia Orchestra the audience was carrying on like a "futbol" crowd in the Dynamo stadium.

The five concerts that Eugene Ormandy and his orchestra are playing in Moscow have long been sold out. Nonetheless, last night's audience wanted to be shown.

Ormandy and his players were braced for the challenge of Moscow and played incandescently. If anything the performances were more glowing than those in Kiev.

After an intense performance of Richard Strauss's "Don Juan" the audience indicated that it was pleased but not yet excited. The Beethoven Seventh Symphony generated more warmth, Aaron Copland's "Quiet City" was obviously a novel and interesting experience. But at the end of Mousorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," in which the orchestra blazed forth with all its colors, stride and virtuosity, the Moscow audience yielded without reserve.

There was a spontaneous outburst of cheers that mounted in volume each time Ormandy came out to take a bow. In keeping with its dignity, Moscow offered Ormandy one large basket of flowers where Kiev had provided three. It was clear however that no one intended to move until there was an encore.

Ormandy obliged with Barber's Adagio for Strings. Three of the Soviet Union's most famous musicians—Aram Khachaturian, composer; Emil Gilels, pianist, and Alexander Gauk, conductor—then marched out on the stage, to present bouquets of flowers and glowing words of tribute.

ROGERS DENIES INTERFERING IN POWELL CASE

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Attorney General William P. Rogers said yesterday he never ordered the United States Attorney's office in New York to drop or turn over to the Treasury the income tax case against Representative Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (Dem.), New York.

Rogers said at a news conference that he would make no other comment on the matter now because a federal grand jury in New York has indicated Powell on charges of income tax evasion.

"Anything I might say could conceivably affect the trial. I have a strong conviction that it would be most improper to discuss a case awaiting trial," Rogers said.

There have been reports that the Powell investigation was put aside for a time after the Democratic congressman supported President Eisenhower for re-election in 1956.

Thomas A. Bolan, a former assistant United States attorney originally helping in the investigation, said recently he had been told by the Justice Department to drop the case.

EXPRESS HIGHWAY CLOSED AGAIN FOR WEED CUTTERS

The Express Highway was closed again today to permit workmen to remove weeds at the side of the roadway. It was to be re-opened at 4 p.m.

Aaron Burr, acting traffic commissioner, said the highway, which was closed yesterday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for the same reason, probably would be open tomorrow all day. Workmen are expected to complete the weed-cutting job today.

AFL-CIO RECOGNIZES ORGANIZERS' UNION

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The AFL-CIO decided yesterday just ahead of a National Labor Relations Board election to extend voluntary recognition to a union of AFL-CIO organizers.
Previously the federation had refused to recognize the union—the Field Representatives Federation. The organizers union had sought a labor contract, especially protection for its members from being fired from jobs.
The organizers union brought proceedings before the NLRB to compel AFL-CIO recognition. The NLRB overturned AFL-CIO objections and 10 days ago ordered an election within 30 days among AFL-CIO organizers to determine whether they wanted bargaining representation by a union.
In the midst of the FRF requests for recognition as a union, the AFL-CIO removed about 100 of its 225-man organizing staff. About half were fired outright and the rest either retired or were assigned to other AFL-CIO duties. The AFL-CIO said it was an economy move.
The federation's executive committee voted yesterday that inasmuch as the NLRB has ruled the organizers constituted an appropriate unit for collective bargaining, it was extending voluntary recognition to the Field Representatives Federation.

CONNELLY, CAUDLE ASK FOR CLEMENCY

Matthew J. Connelly and T. Lamar Caudle, former Truman Administration officials under two-year sentences for conspiring to deprive the Government of their services, yesterday asked that they be placed on probation, or that the sentences be reduced.

In similar petitions filed in their behalf in United States District Court here, Connelly and Caudle also requested that $2500 fines imposed upon them be suspended. They asked that their commitment to prison be stayed pending the court's decision on the requests for clemency.

Connelly's petition, filed by Paul Rava, one of his local attorneys, set forth that Connelly is the sole support of his wife and son and alleged the defendant "already has suffered greatly." Probation "would serve the ends of justice and mercy," it stated.

The petition was accompanied by a financial statement showing Connelly has total assets of $1000, annual income of $1750 and total liabilities of $18,798. Listed among the liabilities was $1552 owed for federal income taxes and $10,099 rent on his New York office under a lease expiring in 1961. Connelly is in the public relations business.

Caudle stated in his petition, filed by C. Arthur Anderson, that expenses incurred during the investigation of his actions and trial totaled more than $6000 and that he is "almost bankrupt." The petition said he has a wife and two sons to support.

It stated Caudle had given "his best services to the Government" and was a "victim of circumstances."

Connelly was appointments secretary under former President Truman and Caudle was head of the Justice Department's tax division. They were convicted in June 1956 of conspiracy to defraud the Government of their services through dilatory tactics in prosecution of Irving Sachs, St. Louis shoe merchant, charged with income tax evasion.

The United States Supreme Court last week refused for the second time to review the convictions.

ORDER SAID TO BE RESTORED IN CEYLON AFTER RIOTING

COLOMBO, May 28 (AP)—Gov. Gen. Sir Oliver Goonetilleke today claimed order is being restored throughout most of Ceylon after a week of Sinhalese riots against the Tamil minority.
Goonetilleke declared a state of emergency yesterday to help the government suppress the riots. Only two new outbreaks had been reported. Two persons were killed near Batticaloa when troops fired on a crowd defying the island-wide dusk-to-dawn curfew. In Colombo three persons were injured by a grenade.
The Sinhalese were angered by a Tamil passive resistance campaign against government plans to make Sinhalese the only official language in Ceylon.

AIR DEFENSE COMMANDER TO SEE CANADIAN CHIEFS

OTTAWA, May 28 (UPI)—Talks were scheduled today between Gen. Earle Partridge, American commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command, and Defense Minister George Pearkes.
NORAD has been under heavy fire in the House of Commons from opposition members who have charged the terms of the agreement do not spell out the extent of American authority over Canadian Air Force units.
Partridge was expected to confer also with the Canadian chiefs of staff before returning Friday to NORAD headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo.

JAKARTA SHOWS OFF MIGS, TRANSPORTS

JAKARTA, May 28 (AP)—The Indonesian army command claimed today its forces have recaptured Parigi, in the Central Celebes, killed 30 rebels and captured large quantities of arms.

The communique added that loyalist forces were attacking Djallolo, on Halmahera island, and had killed 70 rebel defenders.

The communique made no mention of the situation at Gorontalo, in the North Celebes, which the rebels claimed to have recaptured last week after killing 400 loyalist troops.

The air force gave newsmen a preview of the first MIG and Ilyushin planes delivered to the Sukarno government by Iron Curtain countries. Reporters watched two MIG jet trainers from Czechoslovakia take off from a Jakarta airfield and went for a ride in an Ilyushin converted transport.

10-Year Loan.

An air force spokesman said the Ilyushins cost $250,000 each, payable over 10 years compared to the three-year period demanded by western nations.

Meanwhile, an American civilian pilot captured when he bailed out of a rebel bomber was reported undergoing medical treatment in Jakarta.

The pilot, identified as Allen Lawrence Pope, of Miami, broke a thigh bone when he bailed out near Ambon island and landed in a coconut tree.

Pope has been employed by the Civil Air Transport line which has headquarters on Formosa. The airline said Pope had been on leave without pay since April and it didn't know what he had been doing.

Expresses Regret.

American Ambassador Howard P. Jones in an official statement expressed great regret that "a private American citizen has been involved as a paid soldier of fortune serving with the rebel forces." Jones said he is fully confident, however, that the incident will not "affect continuing progress" toward improved relations between Indonesia and the United States.

Lt. Col. Herman Pieters, loyalist military commander of the Moluccas and West Irian (Dutch New Guinea), said Pope was captured May 18 after his bomber was shot down over Ambon.

Pieters said Pope admitted flying for the rebels since late April and carrying out "most" of the bombing and strafing raids over East Indonesia.

Pieters said Pope was a veteran of the United States Air Force. He said Pope was paid $10,000 monthly by the rebels.

15,000 START STRIKE PLANS AT M'DONNELL

A meeting of shop stewards to formulate plans for a strike of 15,000 union machinists at McDonnell Aircraft Corp. was called today, following a stalemate in negotiations.

Negotiations between Machinists District 9 and the company were broken off yesterday, after the company announced it was standing on a final offer, which the machinists had rejected. No further meeting was set up by United States Conciliator A. E. Johnson, who participated in the session.

Union officers said sanction for a strike was expected by the end of the week from the Machinists' grand lodge in Chicago. Plans for a strike at the Lambert-St. Louis Field aircraft plant, largest employer in the St. Louis area, will have been completed at that time, union leaders said.

The machinists have demanded an increase of 15 cents for cost of living, and an additional 6 per cent or 30 cents total, which ever would be greater. The company offered to increase the hourly rate 11 to 20 cents the first year of a two-year agreement, and 3½ per cent the second year.

About 200 electricians, members of the IBEW, accepted the company offer, under a separate agreement. Negotiations with the Teamsters and Firemen & Oilers unions are continuing, with the assistance of United States Conciliators.

JURY RULES VALLEY PARK MUST PAY TEACHER $2275

The Valley Park school district must pay $2275 to Frank S. Parker Jr., former music teacher, under to jury verdict returned in circuit court in St. Louis county yesterday. He claimed he was entitled to the money under terms of a contract with the school district.

The amount represented the unpaid portion of a contract for $3250 for teaching music during the 1956-57 school year. Parker, 731 Hurstgreen road, Webster Groves, said that after being paid for three months' work he was told by George S. Knight, superintendent of the district, that his services were no longer needed.

Knight testified that Parker had been unable to maintain discipline in the classroom and, as a result, agreed to resign. The trial was conducted in the court of Judge Noah Weinstein at Clayton.

GRADUATION CALM AT LITTLE ROCK HIGH

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 28 (AP)—Central High School awarded a diploma to a Negro for the first time last night in an orderly commencement protected by 200 city police and federalized National Guardsmen.

Shortly after the ceremony the soldiers left the school area, perhaps never to return. They will be defederalized tomorrow.

There were no incidents at the floodlit stadium.

"I'm happy that's all over," said Ernest Green, the 16-year-old Negro who made history. "I'm going to New York to live it up."

Green said a New York hotel restaurant union had invited him to spend a week's vacation there beginning June 12. He said he hopes to enter Michigan state college next fall and prepare for a law career.

Last night Green sat impassively with 601 other seniors on the football field. As he received a diploma and congratulations from Principal Jess W. Matthews an almost inaudible murmur was heard among the 5000 spectators.

Green arrived in a taxicab and walked unescorted to the meeting point of seniors. Detectives escorted him to another taxicab after the ceremony.

Among the eight Negro spectators was the Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., leader of the widely-publicized bus boycott there.

About 100 policemen took positions throughout the stadium. Some 120 Guardsmen occupied the school building and the underside of the vacant stadium wing where they were out of sight. All traffic around the school was blocked off when the commencement began.

After Green got his diploma there was an exodus from the stadium of reporters and spectators who apparently had come to see him be graduated.

Several teen-agers had showed up at the gate with counterfeit entrance tickets. They were turned away.

For the first time in recent years there was no formal speech-making at the commencement. Instead the seniors presented a choral reading, "The Story of Arkansas."

The only reference to the unprecedented school year, marked with opening violence, was made by class president Ronnie Hubbard in a short statement.

"Ever since September we have been in the world spotlight," he said. "We have met the challenge with humility and have produced a school spirit stronger than ever."

M'DONNELL URGES AREA CO-OPERATION

The St. Louis metropolitan area is trying to get along "with a horse and buggy government in a jet age," William A. McDonnell, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said last night. He spoke at a "progress" dinner of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce at Le Chateau Restaurant, Frontenac.

"We are suffering right now as a result of traffic snarls, lack of proper area-wide zoning and land use planning, unequal educational opportunities, inadequate municipal services in many areas and an overlapping, jumbled maze of governmental jurisdictions, which can only lead to confusion and inefficiency," he said.

He urged the chambers of commerce of the area give their complete support to the recently appointed city-county Board of Freeholders which is to study co-operation between the city and the county communities.

The main problem of the area, he noted, is "suburbanitis where we have the unusual situation of a central city independent of the county and stifled by the strait jacket of an unchangeable boundary line fixed by the state constitution of 1876.

"While it's nice to be proud of our suburban communities, complete with barbecue pits, crab grass, power lawn mowers and all the other niceties of suburban living, every one of us will either sink or swim with Metropolitan St. Louis. And unless we think in terms of metropolitan development, I'm afraid we shall all sink together."

"If St. Louis is to continue to grow and prosper, I am firmly convinced that we must discard the provincialism which is causing our metropolitan community to strangle in its own growth."

McDonnell is chairman of the board of the First National Bank in St. Louis.

Girard C. Varnum, president of the county chamber, told the 200 guests at the dinner that some of the greatest opportunities the St. Louis metropolitan area has for growth will be lost without regional co-operation between official agencies, business and labor.

John F. Lilly, president of the St. Louis County National Bank, Clayton, was installed as board chairman of the county chamber, and John K. Wallace, president of Cupples Co., was installed as vice chairman.

Inscribed silver plates were presented to Alfred H. Kerth, Edward L. Bakewell and Carl H. Holskamp for their work for the chamber. Special recognition was paid Walter D. Lindeman for his 27 years as treasurer of the county chamber.

JOHN W. HAMILTON FREED BY JURY OF MORALS CHARGE

John W. Hamilton, one-time associate of Gerald L. K. Smith in the latter's Christian Nationalist party, was acquitted yesterday by a jury of a morals charge involving a 15-year-old boy.

A previous conviction had been reversed by the Missouri Supreme Court. At yesterday's retrial in the court of Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield, the victim testified the offense occurred Oct. 13, 1956, at a downtown hotel.

Hamilton denied the charge, explaining he had been approached by the boy who said he was hungry and was hitchhiking his way through St. Louis. Hamilton said he took the boy to the hotel to get him some food.

U.S. Faces Critical Decision As Tunisian Dispute Nears Security Council Showdown

Backing France Would Mean Loss of Staunch Arab Ally and All of North Africa — Support for Bourguiba Would Threaten NATO's Future.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright 1958, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

PARIS, May 28.

IF ANY ONE ELEMENT of danger can be singled out in the fearful peril that is an ever darker shadow behind the handsome facade of Paris in the spring, it is Tunisia. For American policy it is here that the threat to the future of the Atlantic alliance and the whole western position is concentrated.

The nightmare for American policymakers has long been the necessity to choose between France and Tunisia. With the decision of Habib Bourguiba to take the charge of French aggression to the United Nations Security Council, this nightmare would seem to be at hand.

Bourguiba, who has been steadfastly loyal to the West, has an uncertain hold on a country that won its independence from France less than four years ago. His poorly equipped troops—5000 or 6000 at the most—are outnumbered by the army of the Moslem rebels based in Tunisia near the Algerian border. They are also far outnumbered by the French who, under the treaty of independence, continue to have the right of bases in Tunisia.

Pressure on Bourguiba. Trying of necessity to walk a narrow line, Bourguiba is constantly being pushed by his own radicals who demand that the French be expelled from their bases. If he were to fall as the result of intervention by the French military clique in Algiers, the West would lose one of its few real Arab friends and all of North Africa could be written off.

If the United States sides with Tunisia in a showdown in the Security Council, as it almost certainly will, the reaction in France will be violent. It will fan into the open a subterranean fire and the consequences with respect to France and France's role in the NATO alliance thereafter become completely unpredictable.

Anti-American feeling here is rarely visible on the surface. The American, as this reporter can testify, is treated with courtesy and consideration as he moves about the city even though his bad French plainly advertises his nationality.

There have been three or four incidents of hostility in the last two weeks, with American institutions as the target. These have not been announced, in fact an effort has been made to keep them from public knowledge lest they stir other incidents.

While they may be discounted as mere hooliganism reflecting the tensions of the time, they are nevertheless symptomatic of a deep undercurrent of feeling. That is why American observers who read inspired stories about a possible visit of Vice President Richard M. Nixon to France and western Europe express dismay. They predict that the reception he got in Venezuela would be a warm welcome in comparison to what he would find here and perhaps elsewhere in Europe.

The demonstrations of hostility in South America would be taken as a challenge by anti-American elements here and they would be egged on.

SOVIET GIVES FULL NEWS COVERAGE TO FRENCH CRISIS

LONDON, May 28 (UPI)—The Moscow radio and the Soviet news agency Tass have been giving extensive coverage to the French crisis.

The reporting has been largely factual, with occasional interpolated comment about the "fascist" attempt or "military dictatorship conspiracy" to overthrow the Fourth Republic.

In one broadcast the Moscow radio called the establishment of the insurgent regime in Algiers an "attempted fascist putsch." It quoted the Communist press in France to back up this interpretation.

When the revolt spread to Corsica last weekend, the Moscow radio said the event "alarmingly confirmed" the danger from "fascist conspirators."

EAST GERMANY ENDS FOOD RATIONING BEGUN BY HITLER

BERLIN, May 28 (AP)—Communist East Germany today scrapped food rationing cards introduced by Hitler in 1939 and boosted the wages of more than 3,000,000 workers to help them pay higher food prices.

of course, by the Communists. That is why the advice to Nixon will be to stay away unless he wants to come merely to prove again that he can stand up to hostile demonstrations.

The subterranean fire has its origin in the long ordeal of the French with their colonies after World War II. It goes back to the collapse of the French forces in Indochina and the refusal of the United States to intervene to save the stronghold of Dien Bien Phu.

Reasons for Hostility. The failure of the British-French attack on Suez and the American action in the United Nations in voting to censure France and Britain fed the hostility. When Bourguiba appealed to Washington for arms, which were granted in limited amounts, the French reaction was force. Similarly the American-British good offices mission following the French bombing of the Tunisian border village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef stirred dark suspicion even though that mission was requested by the Government of Premier Gaillard.

A recurring theme has been the whispered rumor of a plot by the big American oil companies to back the Moslem rebels and take France's newly discovered oil deposits in the Sahara. It is amazing how widely this is accepted despite repeated American denials.

All this has fed the anti-American complex which is part of France's neurosis of fear. For the United States to side with Tunisia at this point would mean the flames would burst into the open with an explosion that might sever the ties between Paris and Washington.

That is not the immediate danger. Even before this can happen there is a likelihood of direct intervention in Tunisia sparked by the fanatical colonists in Algiers who are the force behind the military insurrection. What they would like to do, as American observers know full well, is to march in and join up with French forces in Tunisia. Once in control, they would establish a French puppet in office and clap Bourguiba in jail. They have the power to do this and they are presently being restrained only by more sober-minded commanders in both Tunisia and Algiers.

How long these restraints will prevail as the tensions grow greater is the haunting question of those who are trying to follow from hour to hour the shattering events now taking place. Nor is it possible to see at this late hour and from this distance what could be done by Washington since so much has already slipped away behind the front of normality that Washington seems determined to maintain.

WEST GERMAN COURT BARS VOTE ON ATOMIC WEAPONS

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch BONN, May 28—Chancellor Adenauer's opponents last night lost a round in their campaign to block the armament of West Germany's forces with atomic weapons. The West German constitutional court at Karlsruhe granted an injunction to prevent a referendum on the atomic issue from being held in Hamburg June 8.

The injunction was sought by Adenauer, who contended that the referendum was an attempt to override the legislative power of Parliament, which authorized his government to proceed with atomic rearmament.

The court's action postpones the Hamburg vote until the constitutional question has been clarified.

FLEESON

Paul Douglas To Lead Fight For Tax Cut

Senator Refuses to Abide by Agreement Made by Leaders.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON, May 28.

DEMOCRATS in Congress were not called into consultation on the agreement Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson made with the Administration not to cut taxes and many are assailing it as a decision made by "the three wise men from Texas." The third is, of course, Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson, an Eisenhower Democrat.

Nor will the dissidents let the agreement stand without a struggle. Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, the only professional economist in Congress, will lead the fight. He does not know how much help he will get, but that does not affect his determination.

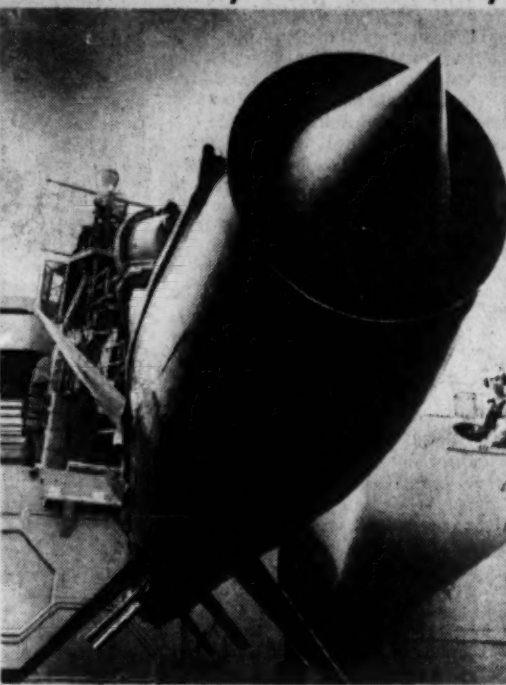

He will be working in an extremely fluid situation. Administration chiefs are split on business prospects. So is business. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is unhappy, as is Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Even aids of Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson say they fear that farm problems will get worse again, though easing for the present.

What embitters Democrats most is the shoudering of the political risks Rayburn and Johnson have done in their behalf. They cannot see that it was necessary to help the President out of this particular hole while conceding that on foreign policy that story is different.

Whatever the political aspects of the argument—and it is as hot a debate among some Republicans as among many Democrats—Douglas is going ahead. He takes the position that the recession is real and severe; he is working on the thesis that the tax cut should approach six billion dollars. The bill he is preparing apportions it almost equally between excises and personal income. He includes also a provision designed to help small business by cutting the corporate tax on the first $25,000 of business income from 30 to 22 per cent.

Douglas's view is that such a cut would increase the gross national product by 18 billion dollars and help to pay for it.

Talos Ready for Sea Duty

The Galveston is the first fighting ship to be equipped with the supersonic missile which is designed to guard against air attack at ranges up to 65 miles and at stratospheric altitudes.

self in increased income tax revenues. Not yet determined is the strategy of the fight. Tax cut proponents are counting heavily on the fact that some kind of slash in transportation excises is widely acceptable. Once that door is open, they feel they will be on their way.

Early in March Douglas made a stab at tax cutting in connection with a tax windfall voted to life insurance companies. He was clobbered there rather effortlessly by the Johnson leadership.

It may be that the fight will be purposely delayed by him, if possible, into the summer. Secretary Anderson, who has done such a neat job of taking his fellow Texans with him on this matter, is staking his case on a summer upturn. Should May unemployment figures rise, after a seasonal adjustment, Anderson's stature as a prophet may fall.

Campaigning Democrats face the fact that they have as a party no record of fighting the recession to help their case next fall. They are being assured by Rayburn and Johnson that the "no leadership" charge will lie against the President and his party, not the Congress. Not all of them believe it; they anticipate that incumbents of both parties will be on the defensive.

One Reason Latin Americans Mad at Us

Brazil Offered
Dried Milk
When It Lacks
Water to Mix It.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1958.)

HERE are some of the reasons why our good neighbors in Latin America have soured on the United States. While Vice President Nixon was advocating sports and culture to win friends in Latin America, the State Department in Washington had dilly-dallied about sending some of our huge reserves of food to the starving population of sun-parched eastern Brazil.

The blistering drought has burned up the crops and dried up the streams of Brazil's easternmost hump, causing terrible human suffering. Poverty-stricken peasants, particularly babies, have been dying by the dozens.

One man in Washington who has tried to do something is Harold Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. Cooley has been on the telephone to the State and Agriculture department, calling for an emergency airlift to rush food from our surplus stocks.

Only U.S. Action. The North Carolina Congressman learned, however, that all the State Department did was send a cable offering dried milk. Dried milk, of course, requires water to mix. Since people are scratching holes in dry river beds for water, the dried milk would be about as useless as dust in most of the stricken areas.

Cooley has called on the Agriculture Department for a complete inventory of surplus food available for shipment to Brazil. He has also asked the State Department to cable Brazil again to clear the way for food shipments. He is trying to bring Brazilian Ambassador Peixoto before the Agriculture Committee today to report on Brazil's famine needs.

When State Department officials heard of Cooley's plan to call the Ambassador, they cautioned it would violate diplomatic protocol—a foreign ambassador, they said, does not appear before a congressional committee.

Meanwhile, Cooley has re-

Military Is Dominant Power In Three Critical Countries

Armed Services in France Clearly Want De Gaulle — Impact in Lebanon and Indonesia Remains to Be Seen.

By HANSON W. BALDWIN

(New York Times News Service.)

NEW YORK, May 28.

IN THREE NATIONS—France, Lebanon and Indonesia—the armed forces held the key to the future today.

In each country the army, the traditional link between civil and military authority, was the dominant force. In none of the countries did the nuclear weapon, so powerful but so limited in its political and social application, have any role. None of the countries is a nuclear power.

In France, where the tide toward Gen. Charles de Gaulle was approaching a flood, the armed services clearly held the balance of power. Upon the cohesion, unity and purpose of approximately 950,000 men in uniform depended the future of France.

Most of these men, certainly the dominant 450,000 in Algeria, appear to be in favor of the return to power of De Gaulle. There are still, it is true, some military men opposed to De Gaulle. These are in the French officer corps, particularly among the retired ranks. There also are undoubtedly some Communists or left-wing sympathizers, particularly among junior reserve officers and conscripted enlisted men.

Military in Sad State. To these divided loyalties must be added other factors noted by Edward L. Katzenbach Jr. in an article "The French Army" in the summer, 1956, issue of the Yale Review. Katzenbach noted that military prestige in France was "lower than it has been since the 1820s"; that the purchasing power of the French officer and noncom from 1900 to 1953 went down between a third and a half; and that "in the 1950s nearly a third of those who have come into the officer ranks are former non-commissioned officers."

There is moreover, "sincere distrust on the part of officers of lower ranks for their superiors," the article says. Nevertheless, despite these factors and the diversity of emotional and political feeling in France, which the services reflect, De Gaulle appears able to command the loyalty and probably the enthusiasm of a majority of the French armed forces.

There are two primary reasons for this: De Gaulle has the "habit of command," which appeals to any professional soldier, and the services depend upon him to restore their shattered prestige and the glory of France.

Situation in Lebanon. At the other end of the Mediterranean the dominant power in Lebanon is also exercised by the army. It is a power that has not yet been fully unleashed. The Government of civilians in strictly military matters can be as disastrous for a nation as the refusal of its generals to accept unhesitatingly the authority of the policy-making government.

The army obviously has not struck the rebels with full force. An additional reason

Our Vanishing Landmarks

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Reader Sharp does well to lament the proposed destruction of the "Old Rock House" on the St. Louis riverfront. If destroyed it will become at least the third major historic or architectural monument to be removed by the city this year, the Merchants' Exchange being the first.

Within the past month the second, the Russell House at Cabanne and Goodfellow, succumbed to the wreckers' hammer without public comment of any kind. Built in 1886 for Henry S. Potter, the house was long the residence of E. J. Russell, prominent St. Louis architect. It was designed by Henry Hobson Richardson of Boston; an outstanding example of the residential work of that "giant" of nineteenth century American architecture.

Whether aware of it or not, the people of St. Louis have lost a fine architectural landmark; a fact all the more deplorable because other local examples of Richardson's architecture are located on Vandeventer Place, itself scheduled for destruction in the near future.

St. Louis might profit from a moment's reflection on the price it is paying for "progress."

An Outsider Reader

Support for Health Agencies

The Post-Dispatch suggests an excellent solution for adequate support of both health and welfare agencies by urging a separate United Health Agencies campaign.

The failure of the United Fund to raise sufficient money to support the major health agencies—contrasted with the success of independent drives—suggests that, inconvenient as multiple drives are, people know how they want to spend their welfare dollar.

The Convincing Side

Every public issue has to have two sides, or there would be no issue—as in the matter of stopping the testing of nuclear weapons.

There are few men in America of Dr. Arthur Holly-Compton's stature. But I believe that Adlai Stevenson, who two years ago, he took the view opposite of Dr. Compton's and proposed that the tests cease.

One day last winter, the Men's Club of Temple Israel presented some Washington University professors who were unanimous in disagreeing with the ex-Chancellor.

These were Dr. Edward U. Condon, Dr. Barry Commoner, Dr. Edward Reinhard and Dr. David Lipkin. All of them presented such a case for stopping the tests as to leave no room for rebuttal in the opinion of this listener, at least.

In a lifetime of attending lectures and discussions I have never felt as I did then and do now, and that is that the whole world should have been there to listen that night. Loula Newberger

To Catch a Rascal

Prompted by the claim that some millions of dollars which employers withheld from employees for Social Security payment never went to such destination, I made a check of my own account.

At the Social Security office I was given a postal card which contained the form for a "wage statement request." This I filled in and sent on its way. What came back gave an accounting of four years and the grand total since Jan. 1, 1957.

The way to correct the fault is obvious. The Social Security office should send each employee a statement of the account periodically, for rascals know they are taking little risk if employees must apply for a statement of their account. They are further encouraged to cheat by the rule that the account becomes final after three years if not challenged.

More important than catching rascals is fixing things so their operation has small chance of success. Maynard M. Pierce

Cut City Salaries

According to your editorial the city's income for next year will be only $58,000,000 but the powers-that-be have arranged to spend $64,000,000—and are now planning to make their employers pay out $6,000,000 more.

Inasmuch as 80 per cent of the wished-for expenditure is for wages ($51,200,000) the sensible thing to do to correct the gross mismanagement of allowing wages to outstrip income is to cut wages 10 per cent across the board from Mayor on down to the last scrub woman.

This would be the mainly thing to do, would reduce the budget by $5,120,000 per year and the citizenry of St. Louis would think a lot more of their public servants. Let's not forget that they are here to serve us, and that we are not here to serve them with additional taxes every time they get in hot water.

Great hardships will be worked on many people if the various schemes and connivances for raising taxes are allowed to flourish. G. M. Smith

Wait, See and Drift

President Eisenhower's decision against a tax cut, concurred in by the Democratic leadership of House and Senate, is in effect a decision to forego 20 to 40 billion dollars of production in the next year.

Our national economy in the first quarter of this year operated at a gross national product rate of 422 billions as compared with 440 billions last summer. If it were operating at a rate which the Rockefeller fund report found desirable to reflect sound economic growth, the national output would be 460 billions.

The President has decided not to strike for these bold objectives. He has decided to let the recession burn itself out. He has decided against strong action to put the 5,100,000 unemployed back to work. He has decided in favor of continued economic drift, in the hope that the often-postponed upturn will be just around the corner.

We think the President's decision is the wrong one, although it must be freely admitted that expert opinion of economists is divided. The Administration can summon competent economic counsel to its support just as other able experts take the opposite view.

The Administration is gambling that, without strong action on its part, the economy will jog along at about the present levels until late fall and winter, when a "natural" recovery will set in. Even if this gamble turns out to be right, it is one which, in our opinion, ought not to be made. For it sacrifices some 20 to 40 billions of national output which, at a time of imposing world challenge, ought not to be sacrificed. It accepts complacency and sanguine inactivity as an appropriate national attitude in an age that calls for vigorous and dynamic assertion of leadership.

Thus we oppose the gamble even if it wins. But the greater reason for opposing it is the very strong chance that the economy will not simply stagnate, but will fall prey to cumulative depressing effects that carry it down to yet lower levels.

As the Senate's ablest economist, Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, warned last week, this recession is the deepest of the three that have occurred since the end of World War II. Unlike the two others, which were primarily inventory adjustments, this one has some earmarks of a "classical capital-goods recession."

Business expenditures for plant and equipment have fallen by 13 per cent—19 per cent in manufacturing industries—and current forecasts do not indicate much improvement. The Newsweek Survey shows that manufacturers' capital appropriations—which set the stage for actual spending in future months—during the first quarter of 1958 fell 43 per cent from last year's level. This was the seventh straight decline and the biggest yet.

As Senator Douglas said, in advocating a six-billion-dollar tax cut, declines in capital outlay of this magnitude are serious, and present the danger of a snowballing effect which could make the recession much harder to stop six months from now.

The Eisenhower Administration has decided against action, partly because it is temperamentally biased in that direction and partly because it fears another round of inflation if taxes are cut. We agree that inflation remains a long-term menace which must be forcefully dealt with by vigorous public action. But right now the problem is an under-employed economy and an under-employed population. This is the problem that should be vigorously dealt with first.

Another Good Will Tour

The President's brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, is scheduled to make a good will tour in Central America, beginning June 15. Should he go ahead with these plans in view of the violence which Vice President Nixon met on his South American good will tour?

The decision is one for President Eisenhower and his brother, in consultation with the Department of State, to make. Here is a basic consideration: The six countries that have extended the invitations doubtless will be offended if the plans are withdrawn, since such a decision would reflect on their ability to keep law and order. Moreover Communists would exploit a withdrawal as a score against the United States.

Probably the best course would be to go ahead with present plans; check very carefully in advance the reports from each of the countries to be visited; avoid going deliberately into trouble if it is known to exist; and especially keep away from volatile young demonstrators.

Surely the State Department and the Secret Service have learned lessons from the South American experience which they can apply with profit. Meanwhile the value of future tours by V.I.P.s needs to be seriously reviewed. Mr. Nixon's experience indicates that improvement of our Latin American relations requires much more than such exercises in public relations.

Atomic Impasse at M. U.

It seems a shame that the University of Missouri is in danger of losing the chance to build a nuclear reactor for training purposes because of an Atomic Energy Commission rule which it cannot constitutionally meet.

The commission requires that the school, eligible for a $186,000 grant, assume full liability for accidents. The Missouri Constitution makes the state university immune from paying damages arising out of civil suits other than breach of contract.

Many other state colleges and universities are inhibited by the same commission rule, according to Representative Thomas B. Curtis. As the curators of the University of Missouri point out, the nation will thus lose the services of a great many potential nuclear technicians unless a solution to the impasse can be found.

Private companies applying to build and operate atomic power plants were deterred by the same inability to underwrite liability, though in their case the difficulty was financial. Congress solved their problem by authorizing the Government to assume liability for damages in excess of insurance coverage available from private insurance concerns. The measure had the approval of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, and was signed by President Eisenhower last year.

The University of Missouri is also prohibited by law from buying liability insurance, so the formula worked out for the power companies would not completely fit its case. The principle on which the formula was based, however—that the Government should underwrite the liability which the applicants could not handle themselves—would do the job. It would seem that at least as much consideration as has been given to private investors for the production of electric power should be given to public education for the production of nuclear technicians.

A Good Bill for Air Safety

Senator Monroney of Oklahoma has introduced a bill to provide greater safety on the nation's airways which we think should be adopted. The bill, sponsored in the House by Representative Harris of Arkansas, would create an independent Federal Aviation Agency with an administrator responsible to the President and to Congress and empowered to regulate the use of all air space.

The two recent mid-air collisions of military jets and airliners and the long record of such peril argue that a reform in administration of the airways is necessary. The President's five-point emergency program, announced last week, is simply an interim measure and must be supplemented if all users of the airways are to have the security they need.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration, a stepchild of the Department of Commerce, and the Civil Aeronautics Board, an independent agency of limited scope and power in matters pertaining to air safety, have not been able to clear the perils from the skies. For this inadequate appropriations by Congress and penny-pinching by the Department of Commerce must share the blame.

Why did the United States, wealthiest of all nations, allow its airways to fall so far behind the aviation industry? The Aviation Facilities Study Group, headed by William Barclay Harding, which spent months studying the problem, answered this question in January, 1956. As Mr. Harding summed it up: When any agreement was reached by civil and military agencies and private groups on what was best to do, the budgetary support and the executive decision to put it into effect were frequently lacking.

Another report, made in April, 1957, by the President's first special assistant for aviation facilities planning, Edward P. Curtis, declared that there had been "no one agency with specific authority and capability." He recommended setting up a single agency with fixed responsibility and a single administrator, well-grounded in aviation.

Senator Monroney's bill provides what the Curtis report called for. It also is fair to the military which requires great consideration in air matters so that the national safety may not be impinged upon. The bill provides for appointment by the Secretary of Defense of a special military adviser to the administrator. He would give counsel on special problems of military aviation.

That seems to be exactly what is needed. Establishment of an over-all co-ordinated agency, removed from politics and with direct responsibility and full freedom to act decisively and promptly, would be a major step in making up for lost time on the airways.

Vague Verbiage on Rail Rates

The railroad relief program adopted by the Senate Commerce Committee is sound, we believe, in those provisions calling for loan guarantees, tax-free reserves for capital equipment, and repeal of the Korean war excise taxes. Unfortunately, there does not seem to be too bright a prospect for the excise repeal, since President Eisenhower came out on the same day for re-enactment of all the excise taxes.

In its recommended formula on rate-making the committee has come forth with a tortured mixture of verbiage which is so murky that only through its administrative definition, if then, could anyone tell what it might mean. "Rates by a carrier," the formula goes, "shall not be held up to a particular level to protect the traffic of any other mode of transportation, giving due consideration to the objectives of the national transportation policy declared in this act."

This might be interpreted either to prevent or to permit cut-throat competition, depending on how much "consideration" was deemed "due" to the public interest in the national transportation system. If any new policy is adopted, at least it should be one as to whose meaning all sides can be perfectly clear.

'Biggest in Town for a Nickel'

Quite a bit of skepticism was aroused when a New York dispatch announced that 5-cent beer was back on Third Avenue. That seemed too much to expect even on a street of odd marvels. But by and by a further report saying that the tavernkeeper was doing fine with his 5-cent libation. He paid $13 a barrel for beer and took in $14 at the nickel price, and his bar was lined three deep from the day's beginning to the day's end.

Cost accountants probably have warned him by now that he is on the happy road to bankruptcy. Undoubtedly they have reminded him of rent, wages, taxes, license fees, insurance and all the other expenses which come under overhead. Maybe the renaissance of 5-cent beer in New York already is just history. But what happy memories it evokes of the days when that price was standard and competition took the form of offering "the biggest in town for a nickel."

Those, of course, were the days before the noble experiment when taverns still were saloons. Then the floor under the brightly polished brass rail was strewn with fresh sawdust. A shot of the house brand could be had for a dime, and the best could be had for a quarter or less. Good cigars, naturally, went for 5 cents.

The lunch was free. And what lunch: slices of roast beef, ham, imported Swiss cheese, herring, cold cuts and what not—all laid out with mustard, horseradish, ketchup and bread, light and dark, for the customer to help himself while the bartender was busy filling half-a-dozen or so beer cans—"growlers" they were—for the boy who rushed them on a notched pole to the workmen who were building a house across the street, or to those who were eating kitchen-prepared lunch in a nearby factory.

In Milwaukee, so we have been told, the growlers also were rushed to the staff of the German paper. The editor always knew it was time to go to press when instead of dipping his pen into the ink, he dipped it into the beer. That's hearsay, of course; but it could be true because all manner of wonderful things happened when beer, the very best, was pushed across the polished mahogany for just 5 cents. Indeed, could anything be more fabulous than "the biggest in town for a nickel"?

Behind the Collisions: Anarchy in the Skies

Many Editors Say That Government Should Keep Military Planes to Selves

The Courier-Journal, Louisville

The third air collision this year between passenger-carrying planes and military aircraft led to a new-old announcement: Two congressional investigations of air safety were set swiftly in motion. . . . The President followed this with orders for a special study by his Air Co-ordinating Committee.

It is routine of such announcements and the failure of many a previous investigation (not all congressional) to lead to corrective action that is doubly tragic. How many more crashes and investigations will it take before the public can expect

The Mirror

Public Opinion

life-saving action from Congress, the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the commercial airlines, and the military?

In the latest disaster near Washington 12 persons died when an Air National Guard jet trainer collided with a Capital Airlines plane. Only the pilot of the military plane survived. Like many another jet pilot before him, he never saw the other plane.

What all this and other crashes grimly suggests—whatever the investigations may yield—is that we need far better policing of our air lanes, military and commercial, quite as much as the promised future advantages of such aids to visibility as gaudy paint and new design and the possible perfection of foolproof all-weather radar.

The better policing can come now, and without any act of Congress.

The Baltimore Sun

The Las Vegas tragedy brought a rash of inquiries. The one near Washington will do likewise. We can rest assured that the end result will bring an improved control of flights all along the line. But we already have such control of commercial activities. The trouble seems to come from the lack of comprehensive control of military and other noncommercial flights in the flyways of the scheduled craft.

The Washington Post

The mounting storm of anger aroused by collision in the skies has fortunately brought an abrupt end to the do-it-yourself attitude toward air safety. It is good that President Eisenhower has finally placed some jet flights under civilian control and tightened restrictions on other military flights.

The long-range problem is to find a more sensible system of traffic controls in place of present rules which permit pilots to fly on a "see and be seen" basis in good weather. This policy may have been adequate in the era of slower-moving aircraft, but it simply makes no sense in the jet age.

Inadequate control facilities make it impracticable at present to require electronic flight controls on all flights in fair weather. But ways and means must be found to close the gap swiftly and co-ordinate all air traffic.

The Providence Evening Bulletin

The tragic collision over Maryland emphasized a glaring weakness in the existing controls and the crying need for corrective action here and now, not in the distant future. This weakness is the senseless and chaotic system which keeps passenger-carrying airlines in well-defined pathways, but permits military aircraft to flit hither and yon across the pathways without being subject to the civilian regulations.

An effective system of air traffic control obviously requires that all air traffic, not just a part of it, be subject to the regulations. The existing system is faulty because it imposes no co-ordinated regulation over military planes. A measure of coordination is the chief feature of the new controls approved by the President recently.

The Chicago Sun-Times

Out of six collisions involving commercial passenger planes, five have been with military aircraft. The blame for the two recent crashes rests primarily on the military. The civilian planes were flying on assigned commercial airlines. Their flight pattern is recorded in advance. The military planes were uncontrolled or under military direction only.

This nation no longer can tolerate such a loose arrangement in its skies. With the growing traffic up above, military aircraft no longer can be free to zoom about at will. Separate zones for military aircraft training and for commercial flights must be a minimum step.

The Kansas City Star

Public temper is rising over the heavy death toll that can be blamed on mismanagement of the nation's air space. The need for a single, central life-protecting system of control over all military and civilian aircraft has become crystal clear.

The greatest peril is in the vicinity of civilian airports that are close to military air bases. Too many of the

he is overtaking a plane and flying a slower jet trainer, he is usually so busy with panel instruments, his whereabouts, training instructions, and fuel supply that he cannot possibly search the skies visually each minute.

The answer is that the Air Force must stick to its own flight zones. Its jets are potentially a peril to civilian planes whenever they are flying in commercial lanes—because they are so fast and because their pilots are so busy.

The Detroit News

The cry that drastic measures must be taken to perfect airways safety becomes angrier than ever. There is temperate discussion of new instruments which might warn of the presence of a plane otherwise obscured to view; it is drowned out by the shrill demand that military and civilian flying in the national air space be separated absolutely.

That would be the perfect solution. If it could be done without either crippling the Air Force or piling up a staggering bill for new air-base construction.

To say that nothing can be done is much too grim. The cry for separation, however, brings solution not one step closer while its proponents remain blind to the obstacles.

The Chicago Daily Tribune

How many more lives must be lost before the military departments and the Civil Aeronautics Board will awaken from their lethargy and do something besides investigate?

After the Nevada collision The Tribune and many other voices demanded that military training flights be forbidden in commercial routes, just as commercial planes are already forbidden to fly in military air lanes. This was an obvious corrective which should have been taken immediately.

With jet fighters darting about the skies at speeds exceeding that of sound, it is plainly evident that they have no business flying in the paths of commercial air liners.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal

The first civil jet transport aircraft is scheduled for delivery to the airlines in the fall. The proposed control system is described by Secretary of Commerce Weeks as being "absolutely essential to the aviation industry and the public."

The investigation which Representative Harris earlier proposed would appear to be just as essential. The Government has not been doing a good job making the air lanes safe for scheduled air transport, as the record of near-misses, as well as collisions, clearly shows.

A five-year safety plan will be good for future control of the air lanes. The immediate need is for an effective method of keeping military and private craft away from scheduled passenger planes.

The air lanes should have far better policing than they are getting.

"Great System"

latter were located more by political pressures than for defense reasons.

But the heart of the immediate problem is in the practice which allows too much leeway to military pilots on training flights. At jet speeds only instrument flying controlled from the ground can bring maximum safety.

The Christian Science Monitor

A jet pilot, who may be closing with an approaching plane at speeds of about 1000 miles an hour (adding the speeds of both planes) has no time whatsoever to swerve. Human reactions are not that fast. Even if

Between Book Ends Invitation to Write

THE WRITER'S CRAFT, by Frederic A. Birmingham. (Hawthorn Books, 351 pp., $4.95.)

Here is a book created in the marketplace itself about writing. It may prove to be one of the most eagerly studied books of fact and inspiration by professional as well as beginning writers. Instead of lecturing on the writer's craft, recent Enquire editor Birmingham lets a select number of fine authors speak for themselves—in their own work. Believing that an excellent example is of first importance he has gathered excerpts from the best of his generation and presents them with the authority of his 25 years of editing, teaching and writing.

Practically every writing problem is squarely faced. The care and feeding of editors, how to deal with authors' representatives, how to market and other vital problems are entertainingly and pointedly dealt with. There is much to be learned about the short story, article, novel, poetry; about criticism, research, the personality piece. Over a hundred authors are represented. Editors such as Herbert R. Mayes, of Good Housekeeping, William I. Nichols, of This Week, Russell Lynes, of Harper's Magazine invite you into their offices for first-hand information on what they look for in a manuscript.

All this set between a pungent prologue by Arnold Gingrich and an epilogue by Lewis Carroll.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Delay Increases French Perils

TO AMERICANS, HOPING NOT TO BE ENTANGLED in the French conflict, the skirmishing in Tunisia is ominous. For if it develops into serious fighting, which might lead to a reoccupation of Tunisian territory, the United States as a member of the United Nations will not be able to remain aloof.

The local French forces engaged in Tunisia may or may not be under orders from Gen. Salan in Algiers. If they precipitate a Tunisian war, the United Nations cannot ignore them. Yet it will not be clear whether anyone but the commanders on the spot is to be held responsible. This goes to show that it is of urgent importance that the United States should be able to make a political settlement in North Africa.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle

When it accepted the insurrection in Algeria, unable to suppress it and begin willing to condone it, the Pflimlin government in fact abdicated its sovereign power over Algeria and over the army. It is most unlikely that the Paris government can ever recover this sovereign power.

Immediately after the insurrection in Algeria the logic of the whole situation pointed uniquely to Gen. De Gaulle. There was little doubt that he could unite the French army under the authority of a government of his own in Paris, that he alone had the personal authority to make a political settlement in North Africa.

Danger of Civil Strife.

As against this, there was the risk of resistance and of general strike inside of France and the danger, therefore, of civil war.

As the parliamentary government lingers on, as time passes, the chances are diminishing of Gen. De Gaulle's succeeding in what he is uniquely fitted to do. The chance of resistance and anarchy is increasing.

For the kind of authority Gen. De Gaulle has, must be used when it is needed or it will deteriorate. One can only hope, therefore, that we shall not have to sit watching a delaying action while the situation becomes more and more uncontrollable and more disorderly.

The Immediate Need.

While we wait for the outcome, let us not do anything to foreclose the future by becoming passionately involved in the French conflict, or by speculating airily about the future of France and of Europe and of NATO.

The immediate need of France and of the world is a French government that commands the allegiance of the French nation and of the French army which is recruited from the nation. Until this need is met, none of the great issues of policy for the future will be or can be decided.

Order or Class War?

As there is now a censorship inside of France, Americans on the outside can speak to each other without meddling with the internal affairs of France.

The question for us is at bottom whether the advent of Gen. De Gaulle would mean an end to the anarchy by a restoration of lawful authority, or whether his accession would be a stage on the road to the greater anarchy of a class war.

There is no certain answer to this fateful question. But what we can say, I think, is that the longer a solution of the crisis of government authority is delayed, the greater the likelihood that the crisis will become insoluble with incalculable disaster.

To the observer on the outside it seems apparent that the parliamentary government in Paris has lost its chance, if it

FUNERAL SERVICES ARE HELD FOR ALBIN P. CROWE

Funeral services for Albin P. Crowe, an insurance broker here, were held today at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 5318 Delmar boulevard. Burial will be in Talladega, Ala.

Mr. Crowe, 60 years old, was found dead in his apartment at 4405 West Pine boulevard yesterday after friends became concerned because they had not seen him since Sunday. He was active in the Westminster church, where he taught a Bible class for a number of years. Cause of death was not learned immediately.

He is survived by his father, the Rev. Dr. William Crowe, who was pastor of the church here for 19 years before resigning in 1938 to become pastor of a church in Talladega, a position he still holds. Other survivors are his stepmother, four brothers and three sisters.

NOVEL TECHNIQUES AT TWO ART SHOWS

Seen at Kirkwood Library and at Art Mart in Clayton.

By GEORGE McCUE

Novel techniques are prevalent this week in paintings and drawings in two exhibitions. One is the two-man show by Mel Drake Jr. and Wayne Kendall Jr. at the Kirkwood Public Library; the other is the sixth annual amateur exhibition at the Art Mart, 31 North Meramec avenue, Clayton.

The widest range of novelty is at the Drake-Kendall show, where media and subject matter are handled in various odd and unexpected ways.

Drake's "Circle Three," which seems to be coated with an uneven film of clear plastic, is a small horizontal composition of watery, greenish tones, with a red glow at one side.

He has several paintings on corrugated paper board, of which "Girl Knitting" places the figure at a bizarre angle, the spectator viewing her "fore-shortened" face from above, her rigidly curved arms from in front. It is done in watercolor with ink outlines, and effects on blouse and skirt of scraped and spattered opaque color.

Most of Kendall's work, like Drake's, has to be looked at from quite close up. His "Windows" is a flat outline of ink and brown on green tone of an old house and a clothesline, which makes an interesting image at close range but from a few feet back dissolves into formless color.

"Anything. Everything. Nothing" pretty well describes a picture by the same name, which looks like a row of books, with a red door cut into one of them.

"Trees No. 1" puts leaning and vertical lines across an orange panel and a brown one. Both artists achieve sound workings of color and inviting paint surfaces, and both tend to leave carrying power out of consideration.

He gave second place to Ann Heymann's "Red Barn," which is relieved of being just another barn painting by a tasteful use of color and strong composition. "Ocean Encounter," Mrs. T. E. Catlin's third-place oil, is an abstraction of diagonals and suspended lines that convey an image of spars and rigging against the sky.

"City in Green," by Dale Hupp, combines painting and excavation—its smooth, palette-knifed surface is lightly scraped in some sections to expose lower layers of paint, deeply in others to bring up the rough texture of the masonite support.

Another kind of texture is in "Market Street," by G. E. Stryker, whose paint surface, of blackened buildings with red roofs against a blue-black sky, is raised to appear as though in repose, and has a smooth, polished look.

This show runs through June 26, the Kirkwood show through June 27.

MAE VAN CAMP RETIRING, WITH BLUE CROSS 23 YEARS

Miss Mae Van Camp, oldest employee in length of service of the St. Louis Blue Cross Plan, was honored at a luncheon yesterday by fellow employees at Forest Park Hotel. She will retire Friday after 23 years of service.

Elmer F. Nester, executive director of Group Hospital Service Inc., presented Miss Van Camp with a $100 United States Savings bond and a sterling silver trophy, gifts from her fellow workers.

In a brief talk, Nester noted that Miss Van Camp was the fourth employee hired by the plan and had seen it develop from a few hundred members to more than 850,000 today. "She was responsible," he said, "for setting up the hospital relations department and traveling around the state in this capacity for 15 years, making friends for Blue Cross and herself."

Dr. Dooley Reports His Project Has Picked Up Wide Support

ANGIER BIDDLE DUKE (left), president of the International Rescue Committee, with DR. THOMAS A. DOOLEY of St. Louis at dinner last night for benefit of the overseas medical program inspired by Dr. Dooley.

Thirty-two physicians, 27 dentists and several hundred other medical personnel have signified a willingness to participate in the overseas medical program known as MEDICO, Dr. Thomas A. Dooley said last night at a dinner for the benefit of the program.

Dr. Dooley, whose work with refugees in Indochina as a Navy physician inspired him to return later as a civilian and ultimately led to the formation of MEDICO, under auspices of the International Rescue Committee, said that more than $1,000,000 worth of drugs and medical equipment had been donated to the program by pharmaceutical houses and other firms.

In addition, between $115,000 and $130,000 in cash has been contributed, Dr. Dooley told 425 persons at the dinner at Hotel Chase. He added that about $300,000 would be needed to finance the work of the six teams of medical personnel that are scheduled to depart for the Far East and Middle East this summer.

Wants 60 Medical Teams. The 31-year-old St. Louis physician, who will lead a five-man team to southeast Asia in a few weeks, said he hopes that as many as 60 medical teams will be created by the MEDICO project.

Those attending last night's dinner donated $925 to the program, it was announced. Purpose of MEDICO, which stands for Medical International Co-operation, is to build and stock hospitals in remote areas where medical care is virtually unknown. He planned. Natives will be taught the rudiments of medicine so they can operate the facilities themselves after the MEDICO teams move on.

"They will be taught Eighteenth Century medicine," Dr. Dooley remarked, "but that will make us happy, because they are living in Fifteenth Century conditions."

It is planned that the hospitals will be of a type that the local community can maintain without overburdening itself. Thus, most will have no electricity, few will be large, impressive structures.

Commenting on the program he inspired, Dr. Dooley declared: "Maybe MEDICO isn't the fifty global formula for all the problems of the world. But from our experience so far we have learned that it is better to light one candle."

The president of the International Rescue Committee, Angier Biddle Duke of New York, told dinner guests that if the Laotian people do not elect to align themselves with Communism "a good portion of the credit will go to your fellow townsman, Tom Dooley."

Dr. Dooley and his colleagues in the MEDICO project "are living, breathing, three-dimensional proof of the kind of people Americans are," Duke remarked, adding that their work will "fill the gap between massive foreign aid and the very people it intends to help."

Duke, former United States ambassador to El Salvador, presented a charter to Mrs. Robert McKittick Jones II, chairman of the St. Louis chapter of the International Rescue Committee. The local chapter sponsored the dinner. Mayor Raymond R. Tucker also praised Dr. Dooley for his work.

The physician is a graduate of the St. Louis University School of Medicine. His mother, Mrs. Thomas A. Dooley, lives at 4402 McPherson avenue.

TWO PRESBYTERIAN BODIES ARE UNITED

Merger Creating United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., Is Completed.

By JOHN T. STEWART

Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 28—The United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. was created here today by the merger of two old Presbyterian bodies—the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., and the United Presbyterian Church.

The new church, with 3,102-572 members, is the fourth largest Protestant denomination in the United States, exceeded only by the Methodist Church, the Southern Baptist Convention, and the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A.

The new United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., was established by 1200 commissioners from the two merging churches who met in Pittsburgh's Syria Mosque after a parade through the streets.

The actual merger took place on a street corner in a down-pour of rain when the two moderators of the uniting churches met, shook hands, and exchanged greetings.

The Rev. Dr. Harold Ray Martin of Bloomington, Ill., had led 850 commissioners from the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., and the Rev. Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, New Concord, had led 350 commissioners from the United Presbyterian Church in the parade.

Each group had started its march from a church of its own denomination. When the two moderators met and shook hands, it was the signal that the new church was born. The two old church banners were withdrawn from the parade, and a new banner bearing the name of the new church was raised.

Communion Service.

The first act of the new church, represented by the 1200 commissioners and officers of both old denominations, was to celebrate the communion service.

The officers and commissioners of the two old churches, who met separately yesterday, were scheduled to hold their first business session later today as the General Assembly of the new United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Most frequently mentioned as the probable choice for moderator is the Rev. Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, professor of New Testament at Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, only seminary of the old United Presbyterian Church.

Another matter of business before the General Assembly will be the petition of six small United Presbyterian Churches, with a total membership of 838, to withdraw with their property from the new denomination. The judiciary committee of the old denomination has recommended that one petition be granted and five denied.

The committee would allow the church at Perth, N. Y., to withdraw on the ground that the "petition appears to have the support of the entire congregation." The committee recommended denial of petitions of churches at Everett, Wash.; Indianapolis, two churches at Lisbon, N. Y., and one at Oklahoma City. The General Assembly will consider all petitions.

The General Assembly of the new church will continue through next Wednesday. The new church has 8462 local churches and 11,373 ordained ministers. Its Sunday school membership is 1,908,658.

Dies in Her Sleep

MRS. AUGUST A. BUSCH SR.

Private funeral services for Mrs. August A. Busch Sr., mother of the president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., will be at 3 p.m. tomorrow at Grant's Farm, the family estate on Gravois road at Grant road, St. Louis county. Burial will be in Sunset Burial Park.

Mrs. Busch, the former Alice Edna Zisemann, died yesterday afternoon in her sleep of a heart ailment. She was 92 years old and had enjoyed a game of cards with her son before retiring for a nap. Until about three years ago, she had spent summers at a family home near Cooperstown on Lake Otsego, in the hop-growing district of New York.

Inherited Entire Estate.

Her husband was the son of Adolphus Busch, who, with Eberhard Anheuser, founded the brewery in 1865. August A. Busch Sr. was president of the company at the time of his death in 1934, ill and suffering intense pain, he shot himself at Grant's Farm.

The elder Busch's will directed that practically all of the estate be left to his widow. He suggested, however, that she take an annual income of $50,000 and distribute the remainder among their five children.

Mrs. Busch was born in St. Louis and educated abroad. Until recently she had opened the big house at Easter and Christmas for parties attended by members of the family and friends.

In 1947, her gift of $70,000 made possible the purchase for public use of the 7000-acre wildlife tract at Weldon Spring. Friend of Children.

One of Mrs. Busch's pleasures in recent years was watching the groups of sightseers who make regular tours of Grant's Farm. From a window overlooking the main route of the tours, she would wave to the thousands of children as they passed by. They would wave back and many of them wrote her letters afterwards.

Because of her interest in children, the family has requested that any tributes from friends be in the form of contributions to St. Louis Children's Hospital and the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children.

Survivors, in addition to August A. Busch Jr., are two daughters, Mrs. Marie Busch Jones of St. Louis and Mrs. Webster Tilton of Cooperstown. Another son, Adolphus Busch III, died in 1949, and a daughter, Mrs. Clara Hazel Ortlwein, died last year. There are 13 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Sad Sam Sorrows as Cards Yelp 'Good Grief' at Umpire Delmore

Decision Sets Up Adcock's Big Blow

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.
MILWAUKEE, May 28—The unhappy Cardinals today vented their anger over an apparent ugly coincidence that brought Umpire Vic Delmore back into their lives just in time to make a disputed decision which cost them dearly last night.

Delmore, as a member of Al Barlick's officiating crew, was in more hot water than boiled potatoes Sunday at Cincinnati, where as plate umpire he first disallowed Ken Boyer's claim that the third baseman fouled a pitch off his own foot and later awarded Frank Robinson his base when the Redleg outfielder obviously thrust his left arm into the path of an old-fashioned slow ball.

Fortunately, with Boyer limping on a foot bruised when he'd hit himself with the batted ball, the Cardinals won that game at Cincinnati and, splitting even in the day's doubleheader, went away congratulating themselves they'd seen the last of Delmore for a time.

To their surprise, however, the third-year National League arbiter turned up last night in Milwaukee, where he'd been sent as a replacement for ailing Hal Dixon in Jocko Colan's crew. And with umpires by nature one of the most vain of all groups, it must irk little Jocko's fighting Irish heart to have it implied that he needs three assistants and that Barlick can do with two.

Critical Call.
Delmore, at any rate, was the first-base umpire who ruled "safe" instead of "out" when the Cardinals thought they'd executed a game-ending double play against the world champion Braves last night at Milwaukee County Stadium.

And when Joe Adcock followed with a tremendous pinch home-run, the Braves had turned a 2-1 defeat into a most unexpected 3-2 victory.

The victim of that figurative blow below the belt on a fast ball literally lay around the chest was Sam Jones, the most tragic figure of them all as the Cardinals seemed to grope their way off the field, stunned, as the 21,040 spectators howled with delight over the quick turn of events.

Some Redbirds stayed to jaw at Delmore, and Irv Noren, who had been a defensive replacement in late innings, had to be restrained from grabbing the umpire as the four officials and visiting players funneled into the runway that leads under the stands to their dressing rooms.

Jones, the dejected giant, couldn't make it to the clubhouse immediately, however. Big Sam's sorrow was so great that he flopped onto the bench in the empty dugout and sat, chin in hands. For the powerful righthander this crushing defeat despite four-hit pitching came after a career three-hitter he'd lost in his most recent contest, 1-0, at Philadelphia.

The Man Was Busy.
In the clubhouse, where they sat alternately sullen and silent, then cursing angrily, the Cardinals contended almost to a man, it seemed, that Delmore had missed the important play at first base by calling it too soon. Stan Musial, the first baseman, wasn't sure. "I was just concentrating on getting the throw," said Musial. "I honestly don't know."

Musial's infield comrades were more certain they had received an unjust decision and so was Manager Fred Hutchinson. "It's bad enough when an umpire misses a play," Hutchinson said. "But it kills you when he makes up his mind too soon, calls it too quickly the way Delmore did."

Hutchinson, like his players, was extremely annoyed, too, that National League officials had sent Delmore to Milwaukee immediately after their differences with him Sunday at Cincinnati, league headquarters. "They're too busy worrying about beanballs and Chavez Ravine to worry about the um-

Flag Again Will Wave Over Home of Braves

MILWAUKEE, May 28—The case of the purloined world championship pennant was quickly solved today. Two frustrated Marquette University students were said to be the culprits.

The students, District Attorney William McCauley said, admitted they swiped the pennant after Milwaukee's storybook victory over the Cardinals last night.

They did it because they were as thrilled as if their football team had won its first game in 21 tries. (Marquette's football team holds the current college football losing streak record of 20 straight.) Having no goal posts, the students had no recourse but to seize the pennant.

The understanding district attorney instructed the students to apologize to the Braves' front office, the groundkeepers and other officials and then, when they returned the pennant let them go without charges.

So once again the flag will wave over the home of the Braves.

In the final game of a trip that has produced only two Cardinal victories in seven starts, Larry (2-2) Jackson will pitch tonight against Gene (0-2) Conley, 6-foot-8 Milwaukee righthander.

For six innings Warren Spahn had the only hit of Sam Jones, a third-inning line drive into the right field corner, where strong-armed Gene Green surprised the Braves' pitcher trying unsuccessfully for a double. The assist was Green's seventh.

Spahn walked with one out in the eighth, Don Blasingame turned in two successive plays that were outstanding, ranging far to his left for Red Schoendienst's grounder and making a brilliant backhanded grab of Hank Aaron's skidding one-hop smash to his right.

The Cards wasted their first two hits, Blasingame's safe bunt and Stan Musial's one-out single in the fourth. Curt Flood's homer came in the fifth and in seventh after Gene Green singled, Ken Boyer delivered his first hit and reached second on Wes Covington's fumble. Flood went out as the runners held up and Hal Smith was passed intentionally. After Sam Jones popped out, Spahn pitched too carefully to Blasingame, missed with three straight pitches and then squawked when Jocko Conlan called the next one low.

Del Ennis' hit in the eighth was only the left fielder's second.

Basilio, With a Welter Of Thoughts, to Be Here For Akins-Martinez Bout

By W. J. McGoogan
Carmen Basilio, former welterweight and middleweight champion of the boxing world, has notified International Boxing Club officials that he will be here for the bout Friday, June 6 at The Arena between Virgil Akins, St. Louis and Vince Martinez, Paterson, N.J.

They are scheduled to box 15 rounds to determine the successor to Basilio at the 147-pound title-holder, an honor he gave up when he went into the middleweight division last September to defeat Ray Robinson for the 160-pound championship.

Basilio later lost the title to Robinson, who issued a statement yesterday saying that he would not box any more this year because of income tax. Robinson said that if he were to fight another time in 1958 the purse would go to Uncle Sam. And that Ray doesn't like.

Because of Robinson's decision Basilio may decide to go back into the welterweight division in an effort to regain that title. Carmen is a natural welterweight and would have little difficulty in making the weight if he should decide to tackle the winner of the contest here.

Bill Daly, manager of Martinez, sent to New York yesterday for two sparring partners who have been working with Martinez and they are expected to be on hand at The Arena today when Vince plans to resume boxing.

His first workout here yesterday was a light one, confined to shadow boxing and bag punching. He appears to be in excellent physical condition and his trainer, Whitey Bimstein, is satisfied with the way Martinez is progressing.

He weighed only 150 pounds after his workout, 3 pounds over the limit and expects to have no difficulty in shedding that much weight.

Daly said the plan was for Vince to enter the ring at 147 pounds right on the nose.

Hans Bernstein, boxing promoter here, was watching Martinez go through his drill and remarked that the battle between Akins and Martinez should be a close one.

"I heard some fellows talking about Akins being the favorite at 1 to 2. Well, it's no 2-to-1 fight," said Bernstein. "Martinez is a good boxer and he can hit, too. The price shouldn't be any greater than say, 10 to 13, with Akins favored."

Martinez said he would continue to work every day through next Wednesday, do roadwork of four or five miles on the day before the bout and that would be it.

There is no sign of strain about Vince as he goes about his chores, kidding back and forth with Bimstein. He is confident of his ability to defeat Akins and insists that he will fight an aggressive bout.

Highland Nips Nokomis Nine In Sectional

Edwardsville High today plays Highland in the final of the Collinsville sectional baseball tournament, the winner becoming eligible for the state series at Peoria, June 5-7.

Highland survived yesterday's semifinals with a 6 to 5 victory over Nokomis. Edwardsville eliminated Belleville Monday, 10 to 4.

Delmar Rutz, Highland shortstop, hit a grand slam home run in the second to account for four of the five runs scored in that frame. The game was called after five innings because of rain.

Streator and Mattson played nine innings to a scoreless tie yesterday, the game being called because of rain and darkness. It will be replayed today.

In other sectional eliminations Niles nipped Batavia, 2-1, and Hall won from Macomb, 3-0. Olney edged out Mount Vernon, 4-3. Taylorville smashed Camp Point Central, 8-0; North Chicago beat Freeport, 7-3 and Sullivan eliminated Roosevelt, 8-6, in the Chicago Public League.

Portrait of a Loser

In the Ozarks

By Z. Lee Stokely
Ozark Sportsman and Outdoors Writer

The jack salmon (walleye) is not considered a fish with a lot of fight in the northern states and Canada. But in the Missouri streams it evidently undergoes a change in personality. A five-pound walleye will prove to the angler that it merits its Missouri reputation as a scrapper of the top division. It is true that walleyes do not explode from the water as the smallmouth bass do, but they are fighters nevertheless, and as a game food fish they are preferred by many anglers over all other species. The chief difficulty in their scarcity in Missouri streams and lakes. For the past several years the Missouri Conservation Commission has been artificially stocking various streams and lakes in an effort to increase the numbers of these popular fish.

A. G. Morris, Hatchery supervisor at Springfield, Missouri, recently told of the successes and difficulties connected with the walleye stocking program. "Some six years ago," Morris said, "we started the program of experimentally stocking walleye fry in certain selected bodies of water in the state. Eggs for this project were secured from the state of Ohio out of Lake Erie. Walleye in Lake Erie is a commercial fish and the state arranges to take the eggs in season, hatch them out at their Put-in-Bay Hatchery, and then plant the major part of them back in the lake.

"The first few years they didn't limit the number of eggs we could have; it depended on how many we could have and take care of when we got back home. We set up a hatchery at Sequoia; the eggs are hatched in jars and we secured some 100 quarts of eggs the first year or so. Eggs count out 125,000 to the quart.

Real Flying Fish.
"However, the last few years the state of Ohio has had so many requests for eggs from other states that they have limited us to 50 quarts—and we don't know how much longer we can get that number. We have been very successful in hatching the eggs—especially since we have hauled them by plane. The distance of 730 miles by truck is almost too far. Our hatches have run from 80 per cent down to 50 per cent.

"Walleyes are very cannibalistic and it is necessary to get them out in the 'big water' within three or four days after they hatch. I remember once putting 10,000 fry in a one-acre pond. Thirty days thereafter there were several thousand in the pond. About 60 days later we drained it and found 32. Three months later we found nine—and I think in another three months there would have been one. That was the result in a good fertilized pond."

Walleye have been stocked in the Lake of the Ozarks, Bull Shoals, Table Rock, Taneycomo, Wappapello and Norfork. The state-owned lakes—Paho, Trimble, Hunnewell and Thousand Hills—also have received large numbers of fry over the years.

A different method of stocking was tried last year at the new Table Rock impoundment. Government-owned fry boats were loaded with fish trucks and the fry were distributed near the center of the lake for a distance of 20 miles. The theory was that the small fish, especially bluegill and other members of the sunfish family, would be near the bank and the walleye fry would have a better opportunity of survival. The newly-formed lake was pulled down, however, soon after the stocking and no doubt many of the juvenile jack salmon were carried downstream to Taneycomo and Bull Shoals.

Best at Lake of Ozarks.
After the stocking of Trimble Lake, walleye were not legal until the second year. Some 10,000 ended up in the anglers' creel, but, according to Morris, it has not since produced anything like that. The stockings at Paho, Hunnewell, and Thousand Hills lakes never have produced in great numbers. Walleye fishing at the Lake of the Ozarks, and especially the Nanguang Arm, is said to be the best in the state.

"To date," Morris concluded, "we haven't developed the kind of walleye fishing on a permanent basis in any of our Missouri lakes that you find up North. Most of the residents on the Lake of the Ozarks will tell you that stocking the fry is bringing them the best walleye fishing they have ever had in the lake. I can't prove, nor can anyone else, that they are right—or, by the same token, that they are wrong."

Black river below Clearwater lake, the Eleven Points, Meramec, Osage and Current rivers are the most consistent walleye streams. Walleye are abundant in the TVA lakes of Tennessee. Perhaps some day there will be a Missouri impoundment where they will grow and multiply and become the No. 1 fish. If and when this happens, this impoundment will be patronized by the many people who rate the walleye with the best.

Carter Makes 'Shot of His Life' to Stay in Masters

3 Strikes In 10th Tie Patterson

SYRACUSE, N.Y., May 28 (UPI)—Don Carter, who has bowled a lot of them, made what he called "the toughest pressure shot of my life" to stay alive in the American Bowling Congress Masters tournament last night.

Carter trailed his St. Louis Budweiser teammate Pat Patterson going into the last frame of the fourth game of their seventh-round losers' bracket match. He needed to strike out to gain a tie.

He got the first two strikes in the tenth, and then with a packed house in the War Memorial Auditorium in dead silence, rolled the third and final one to deadlock the match at 866-866 and cause a roll-off.

Carter was better than ever in the roll-off, slamming out seven straight strikes before he settled for a spare in the eighth frame. He got another strike in the ninth and two more in the tenth, at which point Patterson conceded. Patterson only had a 183 game going after nine frames and had no chance of winning or tying.

Carter's clutch win kept four St. Louis bowlers in the Masters with two "outsiders" in the field that has now been thinned to six. The other Mound City keggers still in it were Tom Hennessey, Woody Hulsey and Buzz Fazio. Hennessey is unbeaten, as is Lou Frantz of Louisville, Ky. They make up the winners' bracket.

With Hulsey, Carter and Fazio in the losers' bracket was Joe Van Winkle of Charleston, W. Va., a 31-year-old dentist who once gave up bowling entirely for three years. He is only a once-a-week bowler and is the only contestant in the finals with an average as low as 190. In addition, he is "waiting on" news from Charleston, where his wife is expecting a baby at any moment.

Eliminated in the seventh round were Art Nish of Sparks, Nev., (the only man to defeat Carter) Joe Joseph, of Lansing, Mich., Walter Ward of Cleveland, O., Milt Likis of Birmingham, Ala., Al Kaelin of Louisville, Ky., and Patterson.

The finals of the Masters are scheduled for tonight. The winner of the losers' bracket will bowl the winner of the winners' bracket four games. If the losers' bracket winner should win, then the two will bowl four more games to decide the 1958 title.

Coaching Days Are Over, Leahy Says on Visit Here

By Robert Morrison
Frank Leahy, at 49, says his football coaching years are behind him, and that's the situation despite any other signs to the contrary.

The man who became one of the great college football coaches of history in 11 seasons at Notre Dame discounted the signs on a visit here last night. A few months ago Leahy almost had signed-up to succeed Bear Bryant at Texas A. & M. Just yesterday, a sports magazine ad on a future article quoted Leahy as saying, "I Want to Coach Again."

"I have no thought of coaching again and actually never did have except on a temporary basis," said Leahy, who was forced by illness to quit his Notre Dame position after the 1953 season.

The old spellbinder of the Fighting Irish found himself "talked into" the Texas A. & M. position on the basis of taking it for two years, then turning it over to a former assistant, Bob McBride.

Physician's Warning.
A physician, an old friend since the day he treated both Leahy and Knute Rockne at the Mayo clinic, soon talked Frank out of the idea. The physician, Leahy said, told him he had a pancreas gland condition that was already kicking up at the excitement of returning to coaching, and that if the condition became acute, the old coach would have only a 50-50 chance of surviving an attack.

So the man who years ago built the Seven Blocks of Granite as line coach for Jim Crowley at Fordham, who hit the big-time by winning all but two games in two seasons at Boston College, and who then picked up the torch in 1941 at Notre Dame, now is convinced coaching is out of the question.

"I feel sure it is," he said, "as sure as I can be of anything, except death."

When Leahy left Notre Dame, he was associated with a steel company for about a year, was with a construction firm in charge of trade relations for another year, then joined a life insurance company. His present occupation, setting up state offices in each of the 48 states and Hawaii for the life insurance firm.

"I'm getting tired of traveling, and so is my family," said Leahy, who has eight children—the oldest, Frank Jr., to be graduated from Notre Dame Sunday, the same day that Flossie, 17, will be graduated from high school at Michigan City, Ind.

"Mrs. Leahy and I will be busy Sunday," Frank remarked. Other children are Sue, who won a journalism scholarship at Marquette with a prize win-to return his injured young star to the lineup in left field and to keep Floyd Baker at shortstop. Stan Musial stole second twice to set up runs that gave Howard Pollet and the Cards a 3-2 victory over the Braves here.

1933—Bob Cochran, 19-year-old St. Louis University athlete, a member of Norwood Hills, defeated Lester Slattery, Meadowbrook, 4 and 2, in the 36-hole district golf final at Glen Echo. Central upset Beaumont, 5-3, to give Roosevelt its third straight Public High League baseball title. Frank Frisch, Joe Medwick, Rip Collins and Jimmy Wilson collected three hits each as Bill Hallahan breezed to a 10-1 victory over the Phillies.

Cooper Wins, Mrs. Knode Is Loser at Paris

PARIS, May 28 (UPI)—Australia's Ashley Cooper, the top-seeded player in the French International tennis tournament, rallied to defeat Giuseppe Merlo of Italy in a three and one-half hour match yesterday and reached the men's singles semi-finals.

Cooper finally won, 7-9, 6-2, 7-9, 6-3, 6-2, to join his countryman, Mervyn Rose, Luis Ayala of Chile and Jackie Brichant of Belgium in the round of four. Rose defeated Pierre Darnon of France, 6-4, 8-10, 6-3, 6-1, in a match interrupted by rain in the opening set Monday. Ayala eliminated Robert Haillet of France, 6-0, 7-5, 6-4.

Rose will play Brichant in one of tomorrow's semifinals, while Cooper meets Ayala.

In the women's single quarterfinals, 18-year-old Esther Maria Bueno of Brazil eliminated the last American hope when she beat Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, N.Y., 6-2, 8-6. Miss Bueno's semifinal opponent will be Shirley Bloomer of England, who defeated Rose Marie Reyes of Mexico, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Heather Segal of South Africa and Suzi Kormoci of Hungary will meet in the other women's semifinal. Mrs. Segal beat Christine Truman of England, 6-2, 6-1, and Mrs. Kormoci eliminated England's Ann Haydon, 6-3, 6-4.

International Group Bars Elevator Shoes For High-Jumping

LONDON, May 28 (UPI).

THE International Amateur Athletic Association has barred the use of the "elevator" shoes which helped a Russian high-jumper leap 7 feet, 1.2 inches.

The I.A.A.A.'s action assured that for 7-foot, 32-inch jump by Charlie Dumas of the United States will continue to stand as the world record. Russia's Yuri Stepanov, using the outlawed built-up shoes, leaped 7 feet, 1.2 inches at Leningrad on July 13, 1957.

Both the United States Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association previously had barred the "elevator shoes."

The I.A.A.A. ruled that no competitor may wear shoes which incorporate any spring or a sole, including ridges or grooves, which exceed half an inch. The heel must not exceed the thickness of the sole by more than quarter of an inch.

C.Y.C. Stars, Manchester City, Rained Out, Try Again Tonight

By Dent McSkimming

A 24-hour respite caused by last evening's rain gave Manchester City's soccer club manager, Leslie McDowell, a chance to revise his team selection for tonight's match with the C.Y.C. Stars. Three of the players who were prominent in Manchester's three games in the East will sit out this one while eager youngsters get their chance to star.

Play tonight, at Public Schools Stadium, will start at 8:30 regardless of weather conditions. Some fans who did not hear of the postponement as announced on radio and television programs, went to the stadium last night and were disappointed at the locked gates. There is no possibility of further delay because Manchester has airplane reservations to leave here tomorrow on a long hop to Vancouver, British Columbia. A game is scheduled there Saturday.

"It would be a mistake to assume that this new lineup is a second-best," said Manager McDowell as he rested at Hotel Ambassador-Kingsway. "On any one day this combinayears in blending the components into a truly great side. The Manchester manager says that even now he doubts that the ideal selection has been made.

Soccer students abroad are generally agreed that England should be among the final four, unless there is another surprise team around such as the United States which in 1950 knocked England out of the competition.

Regardless of lineup changes, the English League team is still expected to get a good bag of goals against the St. Louis team tonight. In three games of this tour, one at Philadelphia, another at Fall River and the third at New York, Manchester City has scored 18 goals, five of them against the Scottish League champions, Hearts of Midlothian.

C.Y.C. players, well trained, hope to make as good a showing as they did a year ago when they lost to Glasgow Celtic, 3-0. But Celtic had no such scoring reputation as this Manchester City team, which led the English League First Division in number of goals.

Jockey Ycaza Draws A 10-Day Suspension

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Manuel Ycaza, leading rider of the current Belmont meeting, was suspended for 10 days by the stewards of the Greater New York Racing Association for "careless riding" while winning Monday's second race with Dancing Feet.

The suspension will become effective tomorrow.

The 21-year-old Panamanian has had three mounts disqualified during his stay in New York but had escaped any actual suspension until yesterday's action. He had set down for 15 days in Florida after he won the Flamingo with Jewel's Reward and was disqualified. He also was suspended for five days in California.

THE SPORTS BEAT

by John P. Carmichael

CHICAGO, May 28.

It is about two weeks until the big-league trading deadline (June 15) and what are they going to do about it?

The Yankees field nine ball players every day while the seven other teams field about three or four each. All things being this unequal, the Yanks keep on winning.

Only one other team (Cleveland) has won a pennant in the last 12 years.

Maybe Phil Rizzuto, the former Yankee shortstop turned broadcaster, put an indicting finger on the rest of the league when he said, the other day in Chicago: "The Yanks go out and get new players... they find talent... the other clubs just pass the same old players around."

At the close of spring training, the White Sox and Tigers were doped to have great chances to overhaul the Yankees.

Neither has even worked up a sweat so far.

They have been talking a trade for two months and haven't made it yet... a circumstance which can be as disturbing to the possible players involved as to the present plight of the teams themselves.

Lane Talked—No Deal.

THE Indians, through General Manager Frank Lane, made much ado about a possible Ray Narleski-for-Bobby Richardson deal a few weeks ago. It didn't go through.

Now the Yanks have as much need for Narleski as another Casey Stengel and Richardson has been benched for light hitting. Gil McDougald simply moved over to let Tony Kubek play short.

Larry Doby is back with the Indians after a spell with the Sox and a few weeks with Baltimore. Gene Woodling is back at Baltimore after a stay with the Indians.

Kansas City, through two big trades with the Yanks and Tigers when the time was ripe, has made more headway than any of the so-called contenders... whether or not it stays in the first division.

"Heads will roll..." words taken from the lips of Charles Comiskey, the Sox vice president.

Whose heads? Whom can the Sox spare that anybody else wants? When the Sox traded power last winter, they elected to go with pitching and defense.

Now they haven't got all three, at least of sufficient caliber to give them that forward look.

On the Yankee bench at Comiskey Park the other day, a member of the champions said: "They play for me like they think it's fall already..."

Old Stars Below Par.

THERE is a startling lack of consistency, this year, among some of the more established stars. The Tigers benched Al Kaline for not hitting.

Jim Bunning, who won 20 games from Detroit in '57, can't get anybody out. Billy Pierce is off to an unprecedented slow start.

Ted Williams is almost 100 points below normal batting for him. So even if Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle aren't hitting, the combined Yankee opposition is below par.

At least there is excitement in the National League. The Cubs, Giants and Pirates are interesting, if not overall sound. New men are doing just as well, if not better, than the ones they replaced.

Numerically, the Cubs have enough pitching so they could sacrifice one for a veteran like Alvin Dark who can knit that infield together.

It won't be long until June 15, after which trades can be effected only through "courtesy" waivers which is a frowned-upon but legal practice. Meanwhile the White Sox, Red Sox, Tigers and Indians better do some shuffling if they're going to live up to advance notices...

The Scotch the Scots Themselves Prefer at a Most Modest Price

Here is a truly rare Scotch discovery—King George IV, the favorite of the Scots themselves. King George IV is a classic Highland Scotch. It's the product of Class A Highland distilleries. Those who have tried King George like it every bit as much or more than the Scotch they formerly drank... and some of these Scotches cost much more per bottle. Try a bottle, you'll buy a case.

Cerv Makes Habit of Ending Turley Streaks—First It Was Scoreless Innings; Now Wins

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Bob Cerv, who became a hefty hitter by shedding some weight, seems to have made Bob Turley his favorite target as the Kansas City Athletics make their bid to tip the scale against the New York Yankees this season.

The slugging outfielder, down to a trim 204 or so after sweating off about 10 pounds, crushed his second home run in the no-windup righthander and drove in four runs as the band of ex-Yankees cracked the varsity, 7-3, and made a shambles of Turley's perfect record.

Turley, whose season-opening string of shutouts was junked at 19 by Cerv's home run as the Athletics lost 8-1 in New York, May 2, had given up only six earned runs while completing each of his starts for a 7-0 record going into last night's game at Kansas City.

This time, he lasted only five innings, giving up six runs—three on Cerv's first-inning homer—while losing to the Athletics for only the second time in 15 decisions. His earned run average jumped from 0.86 to 1.61.

The victory hoisted Kansas City past Boston into second place behind the American League leading Yankees. The Red Sox lost 3-2 at Detroit. Cleveland defeated Baltimore, 7-6, in 10 innings and the Chicago White Sox beat Washington, 7-3.

In the National League, Philadelphia trimmed San Francisco's lead to one game, beating the Giants, 5-1, while second place Milwaukee defeated the Cardinals, 3-2. Cincinnati ripped the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, in 10 innings and Pittsburgh trimmed Los Angeles, 5-3.

Has Batted in 36 Runs. Cerv, sold to the Athletics in 1956, topped his A.L.-leading R.B.I. total to 36, while getting 10-hit attack. Both Willie Mays and Bob Speake bobbled his second-inning single, giving the Phils an unearned run, and he tripled and scored in the fifth.

A bases-loaded single by Don Hoak gave the Redlegs an unearned, tie-breaking run in the tenth against reliever Don Elston. Hal Jeffcoat won it in relief as Brooks Lawrence failed to finish for the seventh time in 10 starts. Home runs by Jerry Lynch and Frank Robinson gave the Redlegs a tie after the Cubs counted three runs in the fourth, two on Walt Morry's homer.

The Pirates counted 10 hits—the first six for extra bases—while handing Don Drysdale his eighth defeat against two victories. Ron Kline gained his sixth victory, but needed Ron Blackburn's relief in the ninth, when the Dodgers loaded the bases. Consecutive doubles by Dick Groat, Ted Kluszewski and Frank Thomas gave the Bucs a 2-1 lead in the fourth. Bill Virdon opened a three-run fifth with a triple and scored on a wild pitch. Then Bob Skinner chased Drysdale with his third homer. Groat tripled off Ed Roebuck and came home on Thomas's single.

Alsab to Be Sold. LEXINGTON, Ky., May 28 (AP)—Alsab, sire of numerous stakes winners, and other thoroughbreds of Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab farm will be sold July 2.

Breeders' Sales Co. said the dispersal would include seven blood mares, four foals and four yearlings. The farm also will be sold.

Alsab was bought for $700 as a yearling but earned $550,015.

Triple A Hopes To Get Savitt For Meet Here

Two national tennis tournaments are coming up for St. Louis this summer and before a stroke is taken in either event the annual Triple A invitational is up for decision June 11-15. That's the one in which several United States Davis Cup hopes are likely to compete.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association's college girls' championship, open to any accredited girl college student, is scheduled at Washington University June 24-28. The National senior men's clay court and father-son clay court championships are slated at Triple A July 8-13.

The same week in July, also starting July 8, the Missouri Valley junior championships will be held at the Tower Grove courts under the direction of the St. Louis District Association. Mrs. Frank Potje is chairman of the tournament likely to draw entrants from six or seven states.

Men's and women's championships of the Missouri Valley will be up for grabs at Kansas City June 25-29 but defending champion Earl (Butch) Buchholz of St. Louis will be missing from the field. Buchholz currently is in Europe and will be playing in the Wimbledon tournament at London at that time.

Another bright young star on the tennis horizon who will miss both the Triple A and Valley play is Chuck McKinley. The Pattonville High protege of Professional Bill Price was to depart today for Tulsa and the men's so-called clay court circuit. As a member of the United States Junior Davis Cup squad, McKinley and other prominent young players in the country will tour the Southern and Central clay court events, then make the three major junior tournaments—the Western, Kentucky State and Nationals at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Later they will regroup for the men's grass court events. All the time, except in the junior tournaments, these teenagers will be playing against men. Buchholz also will enter the three major junior meets. He is due back from overseas competition about July 10 or 12.

Price, one of the directors of the Triple A invitational, said officials still were hopeful of landing Dick Savitt of New York, defending men's champion, for the June event. Davis Cupper Ham Richardson also is a possibility. One Davis player already certain to be in the field is Sam Giammalva, a member of the United States Cup team in Australia last winter.

The Houston player in 1956 carried Ken Rosewall of Australia to four sets before losing, 4-6, 6-1, 8-6, 7-5.

Fight Results.

CHASLOTTE, N.C.—Waban Thomas, 150, Charlotte, N.C., knocked out Oscar Pharo, 203, Birmingham, Ala., (2).

BOSTON—Joe De Nucci, 160, defeated Johnny Cunningham, 155, Baltimore, Md., (10).

SAN JOSE, Calif.—Wille Morton, 127½, San Jose, outpointed Baby Vasquez, 136, Mexico, 10.

Bob Wiesler Loses Four-Hit Game, 3-0

MONTREAL, May 28 (UPI)—Bob Gialombardo, a young lefthander from Brooklyn, need only develop consistency to become a big winner in the International League.

The 21-year-old Montreal pitcher, who is trying to make the big jump from Reno of the Class C California League, has pitched four complete games so far this season, but also has been knocked out three times in the early innings.

Gialombardo came up with one of his better performances Tuesday, yielding just three hits as the Royals beat Richmond, 3-0. Montreal, which retained its 4½ game first-place lead, was only able to get four hits of the Vees' Bob Wiesler.

In other games, Rochester's Cal Browning sent Miami down to its fourth straight loss, 10-4; Havana whipped Buffalo, 9-7, in 10 innings; and Columbus scored three times in the ninth inning and twice in the eleventh to edge Toronto, 7-6.

Wilt Expects Russell to Be No. 1 Problem

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—As a college man, beanpole Wilt Chamberlain is not accustomed to ending a sentence with a preposition, but he says big Bill Russell is the pro basketball player "I want the least truck with."

"If I had to make a list of the pro players I fear most I would put Russell on the bottom of the list," the two-time All-America from the University of Kansas added. Then he caught himself.

"At the bottom, I mean, because he's one man I don't want any part of."

The seven-foot basketball marvel, who announced last week he was quitting college to launch a 160-game barnstorming tour, was in New York yesterday for a press conference.

He told a Madison Avenue gathering of his distaste for college basketball, his disgust with efforts to penalize the big man and his plans for entering the National Basketball Association in 1959 as a member of the Philadelphia Warriors.

"I Will Be Happier," "I don't mean I think pro basketball is going to be easier but I just don't believe the pros will concentrate on one man as they do in college," Wilt said. "I am sure I will be much happier."

Chamberlain said he feared Russell, the 1956 Olympic star from the University of San Francisco who led the Boston Celtics to the NBA title last winter, because of Russell's defensive ability.

Chamberlain's seven-foot frame was draped in a brown tailored suit. He was self-assured and articulate under the bombardment of newsmen. "No, I never enjoyed college basketball," the Stilt said. "I was miserable. I never felt it was basketball. There were two, three and sometimes four men on me and players would do things—like zigzagging down the floor in front of me—to get me to foul or to get me mad."

"I think my biggest battle in college basketball was holding my temper."

Tall Men Penalized. Chamberlain said as if the gang-up tactics of the opposition were "frustrating enough, the rules makers went to extreme to try to penalize the tall men."

"They told me I couldn't tap in a basket this way or that way and I couldn't do this or that," he added. "I think it's ridiculous."

"If they want to hurt the tall man, why don't they put the baskets down on the floor. That would give everybody an equal chance."

Ways to a Calmer Life in Suburbia

This is the last of a series reporting on the tensions peculiar to suburban living—what causes them and how they can be handled to prevent trouble within a family.

By Patricia McCormack

JANET M., a suburban housewife, thought she had a sure cure for her suburban tensions: A martini. Recipe? Gin and vermouth to taste and a tranquillizer pill in place of the olive.

on the phone while she puttered about the kitchen or did laundry.

Janet's solution for her problem took a touch of genius, but that's what it sometimes takes to overcome suburban tensions. The patience of Job and four hands help, too. Janet M.'s family is less tense now. She doesn't scream at the children over every little thing. And her husband gets smiles with his supper now.

LEONARD W. MAYO, a New York member of the executive committee of the International Conference for Social Work, puts the suburban situation this way:

"We are now discovering that suburban living does not automatically free us of all the troublesome problems we sought to escape when we left the city. The way of life we want for our children must be won by dint of hard work, the making of difficult choices, democratic planning, the expenditure of substantial public and private funds—and constant vigilance."

He warns that if Suburbia is to be a better place for children than many city neighborhoods, some hard choices must be made within the family:

► Father must learn whether he is to spend the entire weekend in pursuit of his own personal interests, or divide it, giving some time to the family.

► Mother must decide whether she will devote some of her few free hours to Junior and Janie when they need and want her.

► The children, even the young ones, must decide whether they are willing to help with the work in and outside the house in order to free their parents for more time to be spent with the family.

► Both parents must learn to control their schedules to avoid being pushed around by business and community obligations, or by a constant round of social engagements to which they have given no thought in terms of priorities.

Suburbia, in the words of Clark W. Blackburn, director of the Family Service Association of America, needs a few rebels. That is—families willing to stop worrying about conforming, families willing to develop a pattern of life forged by independent thinking, rather than a way of life that measures up to "the Joneses."

Mayo suggests that fathers and mothers learn to give their best hours to their children, adding:

"One hour of the father's time each week when he is relaxed is worth more than 10 hours when he is tense or indifferent."

Despite the problems, sociologists are agreed that Suburbia some day will produce a quality of home life which surpasses anything yet known in America. Behind this prediction are the many forces capable of welding Suburbia into a "better" way of life for children. Better, that is, than in the city. Suburbia, too, provides the climate for "grass roots" participation in government, giving the adults in the community an opportunity to organize and bring pressure to bear on those officials who may be guilty of ignoring basic needs in the community.

THE TENSIONS INVOLVED in making Suburbia a better place in which to live, ironically, are a sign that all is well in Suburbia.

Dr. George S. Stevenson, of the National Association for Mental Health, says:

"Anxiety and tension are essential functions of living, just as hunger and thirst are. Without the experience of anxiety, we would not be prepared to avoid or overcome situations harmful to ourselves and our families."

However, if the tensions strike frequently and don't wear off as quickly as they used to, your family might need emotional first aid. Your local family service agency, mental health unit, or family doctor should be able to help you get it.

Dr. Reuben Hill, professor of sociology at the University of Minnesota, says families, like combat teams, have a morale and esprit de corps to maintain—if they are to function properly.

Social Problems

DEAR MRS. POST: I am a 23-year-old college student and am in love with a young man who goes to the same college. He shares an apartment with two other friends. I have been going to his apartment to parties and on occasion, to dinner. Even though I never go there alone, my aunt and uncle, with whom I live, object to this as they do not think it proper for young people to be left alone in an apartment, unchaperoned. I cannot see any harm in it as long as there are others present.

Answer: Assuming that you all behave correctly I see no reason why you together with other young people may not go to the apartment of these three young men unchaperoned. To go alone would be another matter.

DEAR MRS. POST: Neither my husband nor I drink alcoholic cocktails, but we like tomato or clam or fruit juice ones very much. What does one say to find out what is in a cocktail?

Answer: At the house of a friend ask frankly, "What is in this?" If asked why you want to know, say, "Because neither John nor I can take alcohol." It is more tactful to say "can't" than "won't." In the house of a stranger either refuse or taste it carefully and if you do not like it, hold the glass in your hand for awhile and then quietly put it down.

Whimsical Turn in Summer Millinery

The fashions illustrated here are available in St. Louis Shops. Patterns are not obtainable. For information call MAin 1-1111, Station 186, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., Monday through Friday, or mail self-addressed stamped envelope to Fashions Illustrated, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

By Sylvia Stiles

SUMMER MILLINERY has taken a whimsical turn. Contrary to the tradition of hot-weather headgear, the latest fancies seldom shade the face. Most of them, however, cover not only the head but all of the hair. Exception to this trend is the "headache" band which is featured in a variety of materials from leather to velvet.

Most popular whimsies are the wigs which may be completely covered with flowers, although the newer wigs show a preference for feathers or velvet leaves.

When brims appear they are likely to be so full of holes that they offer little if any protection from the sun's rays. Coarse netting in a barbed-wire weave is noteworthy for many of the brimmed hats. Finer net and tulle are the choices for draped turbans, frou-frou toques and novelty snoods. Illustrated are typical modes available in the St. Louis stores.

1—One of the newest examples of the fashion for millinery wigs is this wig covered with velvet leaves. Little feathers are tacked at random on the wig and there also are jeweled teardrops in harmonizing shade. Ombre effects in shades of coffee and beige are featured. Especially striking is a red and black alliance.

2—Most glorified version of the snood is this flower-decorated model designed by Irene of New York. The material is a square-patterned black mesh accented with black velvet ribbon that is knotted and tied with a bow at the side back. Some of the flowers are tucked inside the snood; some are "planted" on it. The varieties are white chrysanthemums, cornflowers and pink poppies. Other snood fashions include some interesting combinations of snood and headache band. Made of black or navy net, the snood is attached to a wide velvet band that ties at the front. There is an elasticized hook at the back for comfortable adjustment of the band to the head.

3—This feather wig is a popular choice, suitable for wear with many different types of summer costumes. It is expected to be especially liked for traveling as well as ideal for wear to bridge the fashion gap between summer and fall. Model sketched is of glistening black feathers. All white, black with a color, and several pastel tints are available.

4—This brimmed hat is as lightweight and sheer as anyone could ask for, in addition to providing a maximum of style. It is made of starched barbed-wire patterned veiling and is available only in black. The silhouette is an extremely deep cloche. An Arnold design, it has a softly draped band of the veiling around the crown and a big bow at the front.

5—Designed to cover all of the hair if the wearer chooses, but give more bouffancy than the wig millinery, this hat is made of black tulle. The narrow headband tied at the top is of black velvet. Tiny velvet dots adorn the entire surface of this cool, transparent hat.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

MOST BRIDGE PLAYERS competing in their first national tournament would be happy to win a couple of master points. Mrs. M. J. Novak of Shreveport, La., did much better than this when she entered her first two national events—the women's pairs and the mixed pairs at the Atlantic City Spring Nationals. She won both events. This feat is all the more remarkable because each time Mrs. Novak was playing with a new partner, Mrs. G. R. Nail of Houston, in the women's pairs and John Gerber, also of Houston, in the mixed pairs.

Mrs. Novak and Gerber won close to top on the board for their sacrifice bidding with today's hand. When East opened with one spade, Gerber came in with a light two-club overcall to set the stage for a possible sacrifice at five clubs against the opponents' vulnerable spade game.

Mrs. Novak raised him to four clubs and then when East's four-spade bid was passed—around to her, she made the winning decision by bidding five clubs. East doubled, but Gerber lost only five tricks for down three—600 points. The opponents could have taken 11 tricks at spades for 650 points. As no other South player made a club overcall of one spade, no other North-South pair sacrificed at five clubs and the Novak-Gerber partnership won 21½ match points out of a possible 25.

At five clubs, doubled, declarer lost two spades, a heart, a diamond and a club trick. At spades East loses a heart to South and a diamond to North.

Although Mr. Gerber is the author of the popular Gerber four-club ace-showing convention, he and Mrs. Novak reached a successful grand slam at hearts with the help of the rival Blackwood convention when they met this hand:

A five-heart response to the Blackwood four no-trump call would show two aces, but with two aces plus a void, Mrs. Novak jumped to six hearts. With both opponents bidding spades, Gerber knew his partner's void must be in spades, and he said seven hearts.

Mrs. Novak drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed three clubs on the board. With the clubs splitting 4-3, her fifth club became established as her thirteenth trick.

Difficult Position of The Lebanese

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, May 28.
LEBANON is certainly having a hard time.

The problem does not seem to be as simple as who shall be elected to the presidency and whether there shall be changes in the Constitution. Underlying this there seems to be interference from other Arab states, so the real problem is whether Lebanon is to be swallowed up by the United Arab Republic through which President Nasser has spread the power of Egypt over Syria and Yemen.

Every current gain for Nasser, because of his close ties with the Soviet Union, is a gain for the Soviets, for it gives that country a greater hold over the middle East as a whole.

The words spoken between Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Nasser about non-interference by the Soviet Union in Arab affairs seem to be pure nonsense in view of the understanding between Khrushchev and Nasser which falls into line with the Soviets' wishes.

This is serious business, and whether the presence of our fleet in the Mediterranean will be enough assistance to help the Lebanese to resolve their difficulties in their own way is one of the things we can hope for while watching what goes on from day to day.

I AM TOLD the House Un-American Activities Committee was troubled by Cyrus Easton's criticism of the FBI.

Have we reached the point that a man conducting inquiries into various subjects is not to be permitted to express an opinion on a branch of our Government?

What is happening to our old feeling that we have the right to hold opinions and to express them—even to change them if we find that we had changed our point of view? No one, I believe, could take away from us this right unless we had been lazier and they wished to sue us.

I don't expect that everyone will agree with Mr. Easton's criticism any more than they may agree with the other findings that may come out of any conference, but that he should not be allowed to speak his piece without being called by the Un-American Activities Committee seems unbelievable.

AN OLD FRIEND of Ed Gardner complained bitterly that his wife was making his life a hell on earth. "How long have you been married?" asked Gardner. "Twenty horrible, unbearable years," groaned the friend. "Why don't you leave her?" asked Gardner.

"I'd have walked out long ago," admitted the friend, "but I just can't bear the thought of kissing her goodbye."

A MOVIE PRODUCER, anxious to place a writer under contract, gave him a personal tour of the studio, concluded his pitch with, "Besides everything else you rate a substantial pension when you reach 65."

"How," speculated the writer, "do you live to be 65 in a madhouse like this?"

Replied the producer, "Overnight."

A MAN who had made a fortune overnight took his minister into the library to show him all the rare books he had acquired. "There," said the rich man with a dramatic gesture, "are my best friends." The clergyman remarked dryly, as he glanced at the pages, "I'm glad you don't cut them."

Career of New Chief of Shaw's Garden

Dr. Frits Went, One of World's Top Botanists, Followed in His Father's Footsteps

By Clarissa Start
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

HOLLAND HAS GIVEN far more to the world of botany than tulips. Its contribution of most interest to St. Louisians at the present time is Dr. Frits Warmholt Went, new director of Shaw's Garden, who is considered by his predecessor, Dr. Edgar Anderson, to be "one of the first half-dozen great botanists in the world."

Although Went and his wife will not move here from his present post in California until September, he was in town last week getting acclimated.

"And I expect to feel quite at home here," he says with a smile. "After all, I was born in a botanical garden."

This is not quite literally true but Dr. Went, a big, rugged white-haired man who looks more football coach than flower fancier, did spend much of his childhood at the Utrecht Botanical Garden, where his father was director, in the university town of Utrecht, Holland.

"I can still remember how the beauty of the flowers impressed me," he said. "The rhododendrons, the lilies of the valley, and in the greenhouses, orchids."

His father was reluctant to urge the children to follow his line of work but in spite of this reluctance, two of them did. Dr. Went's sister, Johanna, has done a great deal of work on the Dutch elm disease ("which doesn't come from Holland but was investigated there first") and on developing disease-resistant elms. Another sister is a housewife, one brother a professor of atomic energy in Holland, the other a lecturer in biochemistry in Jamaica. Dr. Went's mother, now a widow, celebrated her eightieth birthday last year with her family and botanists from all over Holland to help her.

"Although my father was afraid to push me into his work, I had a marvelous high school teacher, a man named Stakman, who had no such qualms," Went recalled. "He got me interested in going on trips around the country, collecting plants and fishing for insects in the water. I had a friend in the same class and we each made a herbarium of dried plants. Every Saturday we would count the number of plants we had and when he had a few plants ahead of me, I had to work hard to catch up."

After his graduation from Utrecht University, Went worked as assistant in the botanical garden there while getting his master's and doctor's degrees and did research on plant hormones. In 1928, he and his wife went to Java, where he was plant physiologist at the Royal Botanical Garden in Buitenzorg.

"In spite of the 270 rainy days a year, it was a delightful place to live," he related. "Beautiful surroundings and an easy life with five servants. Although I still think I like it better here where you do more for yourself and are leading more your own life." (Whether or not Mrs. Went agrees, he did not say.)

In Java he studied orchids in their native surroundings, in the jungle where they grow as epiphytes, using the branches of trees for support.

Secrets of Charm

Try Being Friendly From the Start

HOW MUCH RICHER would your life be with friends—if you were more friendly toward those you've just met? If, at the start of an acquaintance, you expressed more interest in a person instead of waiting for interest to be expressed in you?

What do you do about it when you meet people you'd like to know better?

WHEN YOU are drawn to someone, it's so often true that that person is equally drawn to you. Don't risk seeming cold as you hold back hoping to be encouraged—let a little of the real warmth that is there show and your cordiality will be returned. Unbecoming boldness, of course, repels rather than compels those who are worthwhile to know; but as long as almost everyone has some natural shyness, it's up to you as much as to anyone else to make the first move.

Spend a little more time than is customary with the person who interests you at first meeting, and go beyond conventional polite remarks to try to spark interest in a subject you two might have in common. Then you can say that you'd like to pursue the subject at another time, and may you call her? Make an

DR. FRITS WENT, NEW DIRECTOR OF SHAW'S GARDEN, STANDS IN FRONT OF THE MUSEUM BUILDING BUILT BY HENRY SHAW.

In 1933, a friend, Dr. Herman Dolk, who was working at the California Institute of Technology, was killed in an automobile accident, and Went was asked to replace him. Here again he worked on plant hormones until a whole new avenue of research opened up to him.

"That happened on the day Dr. Henry Eversull came into the office and said, 'We want to have an air-conditioned greenhouse,'" Went related. "We built some and it turned out that with such air-conditioned greenhouses you can find out a remarkable amount of what climate means to plants. You can have continuous spring, or summer or winter. You find out why a plant likes to grow during summer, whether it is the light or the hot days or the warm nights."

The found, for instance, that tomato plants fruit well during warm days but not during warm nights. Nights of 65-degree temperature are preferable for fruit setting, and if high night temperatures continue, tomato plants will grow luxuriantly but will not have as much fruit.

"In the laboratory, we recently completed research work for the Campbell Soup Co., developing a tomato which will set in hot night temperatures so things look bright for tomato production in hot weather," he said.

Other experiments were conducted on corn, which tolerates hot nights but doesn't really like them; English daisies, which like it cool; petunias, which like it warm, and African violets, which prefer warm nights. This is why petunias make such good house plants, provided you don't turn your thermostat down at night.

"After we had the first air-conditioned greenhouses we built a whole range of them, so we could study the various climatic and light factors separately. In this way we were able to find out if it's the rain in June or wind in July or the heat in August or cool nights in September that make a good sugar beet crop, or what makes a strawberry taste good. There are all sorts of things which can be investigated under controlled conditions."

Author of a book on his findings with the air-conditioned greenhouse or phytotron, Dr. Went has an honorary doctor's degree from the University of Paris, is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, founder and for several years trustee of the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum in Arcadia, and winner of the Clean Air award in Los Angeles for his work on the effects of smog on plants.

He is enthusiastic in his praise of what St. Louis did for its smoky conditions, recalling that in 1935 he visited here and "only knew I was in St. Louis because the map said so; it was dark as night."

He is looking forward to the challenges of his new job at Shaw's Garden where he will replace Dr. Hugh Cutler, acting director since Dr. Anderson resigned in 1956. Went's big problem will be a financial one since the Garden depends on private contributions for its support and is in need of many things.

"But the Garden has a magnificent history, it has trained many fine botanists, and it is splendid to be able to continue in the tradition," he said. "And I understand the Friends of the Garden and other groups provide great assistance and cooperation."

At present, Dr. Went and his wife are living in Oakdale, a suburb of Pasadena, Calif. Their son, Hans, 28, is finishing work for his Ph.D. degree in zoology, and their daughter, Anneke, 25, teaches school. The Wents will not move here until September but not in order to avoid the heat.

"I had previously made plans to spend the summer on the desert," Dr. Went said, "studying how plants survive in the heat. I have a mobile laboratory truck and trailer which is air-conditioned so I expect to be comfortable. I don't know whether the plants will be or not."

Both Dr. and Mrs. Went worked on a successful victory garden during the war years but for the most part, Mrs. Went, who attended gardening school in Holland, is the practical gardener of the family.

"I have found it is quite different to know theory from books and then try to make things grow in the out of doors," said Dr. Went with a twinkle in his eye. "The trouble is, you see, the plants don't know too much about the theory."

What Kind Of Friend Are You?

By Ruth Millett

WHAT KIND of friend are you?

Are you the kind of friend who is all sympathy when others are in trouble, but who hates to see them prosper and get ahead?

The kind who sticks when the going is good, but is too busy to be bothered when a friend can no longer do him any good?

Are you the kind who takes—but rarely gives?

Who counts every favor done and every favor received—keeping a mental balance sheet of what he does for others and what they do for him?

Who resents a friend's being well liked by others or thinking as much of others as of him?

Who prides himself on being frank—which means being frank to point out the unpleasant truth, to see the fly in the ointment, to make the unhappy reminder?

Who takes old friends for granted and makes less effort for them than for the newest acquaintance?

Who agrees with a person to his face, and criticizes him behind his back?

Who wants to have everything his own way, and everything done at his convenience?

Who can be silent while a friend is being criticized or gossiped about?

Or, are you the kind of friend you expect your friends to be to you?

Are you sure?

Slim Appearance

The dress that is vertically tucked from shoulders to hemline gives an illusion of slenderness, so is especially flattering to the woman who wants to look slimmer. Some of these dresses are appearing of crepe materials. White, pastels, navy and black are included in the collections. One model that has a rounded neckline and brief sleeves adds a matching wool jacket that is trimmed with the crepe.

Uncle Ray's Column Moving Rings of Saturn

talks to the entire party, saying: "I have discussed that point with the pilot, and he seems to be against the idea. He says that little would be gained by landing there. Instead he plans to go around Jupiter four or five times. During the circles, we shall make pictures with our telescopic cameras. Will that be satisfactory?"

A GENERAL murmur of approval greets the guide's words. Members of the party still feel a bit tired after the Saturn landing.

"I'm glad," says Heather. "I got tired on Saturn, and Jupiter is bigger than Saturn and must have a lot more gravity."

"When are we going to eat next?" asks Mrs. Lydell. For adventure section of your scrapbook.

ONWARD toward Jupiter rushes the rocket. "How long will it take us to get there, and are we going to make a landing?" asks Jimmy.

Instead of giving a direct answer to the boy, the guide raises his voice a little, and
